MRS. AVERY NO. 2 RETURNS; DID NOT KNOW OF NO. 1

Mrs. Gertrude Stroud Avery Also Hears on Arrival That Her Husband Is an Absconder.

HAD TAKEN TRIP AFTER A QUARREL

Sobbing Bitterly on Learning of His Dual Life and Says She Thinks Terrible Lot of Him.

St. Louis, July 15.—Mrs. Gertrude Stroud Avery, 17-year-old wife of G. Edward Avery, missing $175-a-month bookkeeper who maintained two households, two wives, two children and two automobiles, came home last night to the time-payment bungalow at 1246 Jefferson avenue, Vinita Park. She had gone to Los Angeles with her 3-month-old son, Edward James, and her mother, to split her husband because of a recent quarrel, and she did not know of his other wife, or his pecuniations at the American Bakers' Machinery Co., 1600 South Kingshighway, until a newspaper was placed in her hand as she alighted from a train.

She could tell nothing of the whereabouts of her enigmatic husband, nor of Mrs. Maude Hook Avery, their 5-year-old son, Warren, and Avery's father-in-law, Charles W. Hook, who disappeared from Avery's other home at 1107 Central avenue, July 3.

Supposition as to Avery. The supposition is that Avery's real responsibility proved too much for him, and that to relieve the strain of threatening disaster he abandoned his bigamous wife and fled to the city with his first, and legitimate, family.

"The last time I saw Eddie was three weeks ago last Monday night," Mrs. Avery No. 2 said to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "We had a quarrel—I don't tell you what it was about—and he left the house. He never came back. I didn't have any idea that he had another family, and I can't believe it now."

She sobbed intermittently as she talked, occasionally bursting into violent weeping. She sat in the comfortable living room of the Vinita Park home in an overstuffed chair, and little Edward James cooed happily as he played with his toys in a crib over against the wall. Mrs. Avery wore a moderate-priced pink dress and a diamond-set primrose wedding ring Avery had given her.

The story of her departure. "I waited until Saturday, July 3, for him to come home, but he never showed up," she continued. "I was angry and I decided to teach him a lesson. I packed up and went with the baby to my mother's home near Clayton and Denny roads. We went to Los Angeles."

"We stayed there four days and I couldn't stand any more of it. I wanted to get back to Eddie and I decided he had had lesson enough. I didn't know what had happened until I got off the train and a man who came to meet us showed me the paper."

The young wife burst into tears. "I think a terrible lot of him," she sobbed.

She never had noticed anything mysterious or peculiar in her husband's actions and it seemed impossible to her that he should have been married for eight years to another woman, maintaining her in another home.

Tells of Meeting Avery. She was an usher in the Gayety Theater when she met him. They went out for rides in his automobile and he seemed to be a steady young fellow with a good job. When he proposed two years ago, she accepted, and they went to live at Pattonville, St. Louis County. Last August he made a first payment on the Vinita Park bungalow and moved there with her sister and brother-in-law. His car required two Nash automobiles which are still in the garage.

Avery handled his own money, she said, and gave her an ample allowance. He came home for dinner each night at six, she related, usually spent the evenings with her, and left before breakfast. Recently, she related, he began talking of taking a long vacation. He did not want to go anywhere in particular and his idea was to pack their things into an automobile and just drive off for a month or two. With this in view they sold the household furniture to her brother-in-law.

Listed Twice in Directories. All this time Avery was leading a dual life. In the telephone directory he was listed twice.

SUBWAY POWER MEN JOIN NEW YORK STRIKE

Company Officials, However, Say Service Is About Normal—Strikers Dropped From Payroll.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The subway strike, which the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. announced Tuesday was ended as far as it was concerned, when all strikers were crossed from the payroll, showed new signs of life today.

At strike headquarters it was announced that 105 men had walked out from the Seventy-fourth Street Power House. The Seventy-fourth Street Power House, through various substations, furnishes current to the east side subway and elevated lines in Manhattan, the Interborough lines in Brooklyn and the Corona and Astoria lines in Queens.

The strike is now nearing the end of its second week. Service, according to subway officials, is practically normal. Most of the strikers are subway motormen and switchmen.

The 400 patrolmen who have been riding on the elevated trains since the strike were ordered removed today. Patrolmen who have been stationed on platforms will remain at their posts. All vacancies in the police department have been ordered suspended until the strike is settled.

S. S. KRESGE FILES SUIT TO DIVORCE HIS SECOND WIFE

Millionaire 5 and 10-Cent Store Owner's Complaint Locked in Court Vaults in Detroit.

HER $2,000,000 CLAIM SETTLED RECENTLY

Judge Issues Order for Service of Summons by Publication—She Is Resident of New York.

DETROIT, Mich., July 15.—Sebastian S. Kresge, millionaire operator of a chain of 5 and 10 cent stores, has filed suit in Circuit Court here to divorce his second wife, Doris Mercer Kresge of New York City. The bill of complaint has been locked in the court vaults and the charges have not been made public.

The suit was disclosed today with the filing of an affidavit of nonresidence and the issuance by Judge Harry J. Dingsman of the Circuit Court of an order for service by publication on Mrs. Kresge. Mrs. Kresge, whose address is given as 375 Park avenue, New York, is ordered to appear in answer to the bill of complaint within three months of the date of the order.

The divorce action follows closely a settlement out of court in New York of Mrs. Kresge's claim for $2,000,000 in S. S. Kresge Co. stock, which, she said, was due her under a prenuptial agreement. Provision was made last March for an upward scale of gifts to Mrs. Kresge each year provided she fulfilled her part as a "dutiful wife."

When the wife's suit was settled in New York last March, Kresge said, Mrs. Kresge's right to the shares of S. S. Kresge's stocks has been confirmed, thereby making Mrs. Kresge independent for the rest of her life.

The Kresges had been separated since Easter, 1925. They were married four months after Kresge's first wife had obtained a divorce in Detroit. Kresge met his second wife through his interest in her musical education.

Two months ago it was announced that Kresge had established a $25,000,000 endowment for philanthropy and education details of which still are to be worked out.

The first Mrs. Kresge got her divorce on the ground of cruelty. The second Mrs. Kresge is 30 years old and Kresge is 57.

WOMAN SWIMMER SAVES FLYER

Portland, Ore., Resident Goes to Rescue When Airplane Burns.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 15.—Swimming to the blazing wreckage of an army airplane near here yesterday, Mrs. Ola Reick rescued Lieutenant William J. Knauf after his airplane crashed into power lines and fell to the water in flames. Lieutenant Knauf, flying with Knauf, reached shore without assistance.

Mrs. Reick, who witnessed the crash from near shore, where she had been swimming, disregarded warnings of several men that the plane might explode at any time and swam to it. She found Knauf seriously injured and held partly under water by struts of the plane. Holding him completely under water, she loosened the belt with which he was strapped to the ship and brought him to shore. Knauf was severely burned and his left arm was broken.

DOCTOR AND WIFE HELD FOR DEATH OF BOSTON GIRL

Accused of Operating on Edith Greene, Whose Dismembered Body Was Found at Roadside.

YOUTH'S CONFESSION CLEARS UP MYSTERY

He Admits Taking Girl to a Physician, but Denies Part in Disposing of the Corpse.

BOSTON, July 15.—Warrants charging murder were issued today for Dr. Thomas E. Walsh and his wife, who were alleged to have performed an illegal operation on Miss Edith L. Greene, 20 years old, state ward, whose dismembered body was found Tuesday.

James V. Ford, a 21-year-old shipping clerk had been arrested after he assumed blame for the condition of Miss Greene. Ford said he had taken the girl to a doctor. He received an urgent call from the physician Sunday, he said, and on reaching the office found the girl had died. He said he refused to assist in the disposition of the body which was subsequently discovered near a cemetery wall by a laborer on his way to work.

Edith Greene until recently had been employed as a cleaner at the Boston Psychopathic Hospital. She had been a State ward since childhood and was one of three children. She hired a room in the Roxbury section July 8 and left her belongings there. "That same night a young man called and took her away with him. She was never again seen alive."

In May, 1912, Dr. Walsh was held for a time as a suspicious person in connection with an illegal operation, and in 1920, after he had been indicted for a similar operation, his case was filed. A little later he was found not guilty of violation of the Federal narcotic law. In September, 1923, following a complaint by the State Board of Registration in Medicine that Walsh was practicing as a physician without a license, he was fined $200.

MAYOR ANNOUNCES PLANS FOR IMMEDIATE USE OF FREE BRIDGE; CALLS ALDERMEN TO SPECIAL SESSION

NON-USE OF FREE BRIDGE COST CITY MILLIONS, MAYOR SAYS

Considers This to Be a Contributing Factor in Preventing St. Louis From Growing Like Other Cities.

ASKS RAILROADS TO CO-OPERATE

With Their Aid Structure Can Be Made to Serve the Purpose for Which It Was Originally Constructed.

Following is the text of Mayor Miller's statement to the public, in which he outlines his plan for putting the Free Bridge to immediate use by railroads:

"In the platform upon which I was elected, the following statement was made:

"The use of the Municipal bridge has been a much discussed problem. The citizens of St. Louis voted bonds for this bridge under the assumption that the bridge would be used by the railroads to relieve traffic congestion, but would turn this bridge from a taxpayers' burden into a revenue producer. The Mayor should exercise every influence possible to bring about the immediate use by the railroads of the Municipal bridge."

"Since my election, many conferences have been held with engineers, lawyers and railroad men on this subject. Personal inspections have been made of the Municipal bridge and its approaches, and I now present a plan which I believe, and have been advised by those in a position to know, will result in the use of the Municipal bridge on a basis eminently fair to every one. This plan, I believe, will make it possible for at least 150,000 cars to be transported over the Municipal bridge in the next 18 months."

Independent of C. of C. Plan.

"Several months ago, an ordinance for the exchange of the East and Municipal bridges was presented to the public by a committee selected some six years ago by the Chamber of Commerce and other organizations and interests. I do not believe that the plan herewith offered need interfere with the adoption of that ordinance. In fact, the exchange ordinance specifically reserves to the City of St. Louis the right to permit railroads other than the Terminal to use the Municipal bridge upon terms of exact equality."

"On this point the Globe-Democrat, on July 8, commented editorially as follows:

"This right to permit railroads to use the bridge would be retained, and held solely, by the city. Any other road desiring to use it would deal with the city, which would fix the terms, being obliged, however, both by the act of Congress and by the ordinance, to treat all with exact equality."

"The plan presented by me would exercise this reserved right now, so the bridge could be put to use even before the plan of the committee and the Terminal Railroad could be adopted, and would not only treat all railroads with exact equality, but would exact equal compensation from all in proportion to their use. It should not be taken as either an approval or a disapproval, on my part, of the plan proposed by the Chamber of Commerce Committee and the Terminal Railroad. Their plan to become effective would possibly require several years. The plan I offer can become effective within the period of a few months, and the ap-

Mayor's Letters Asking Railroad Presidents to Co-operate With Him

MAYOR MILLER'S letters to President Miller of the Terminal Railroad Association, President Baldwin of the Missouri Pacific, and President Markham of the Illinois Central, urging their co-operation in the city's plan for immediate use of the Municipal Bridge by railroads, follow:

To Terminal Association. "Mr. Henry Miller, President Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis, Union Station, St. Louis, Mo. "DEAR Mr. Miller: I am endeavoring to close a plan which I believe will ultimately result in a general use of the Municipal Bridge, which will be beneficial both to the railroads and to the business interests of the city. It is not intended by this plan in any way to interfere with the plan for bridge exchange recently presented to the public by the committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

"You have yourself stated to me that even if the bridge exchange ordinance were adopted, the City of St. Louis would still have the right to grant the right to use the bridge to railroads other than yourselves, on terms of equality; the present plan contemplates the use of the bridge by such other railroads, in anticipation of a general use by your association and any other railroads which may apply. For this reason, I do not anticipate any objection on the part of the Chamber of Commerce or those interests which you represent.

"You will recall that at the conference over the bridge exchange ordinance, the statement was repeatedly made that the railroads were prohibited from using the Municipal Bridge by the restrictions contained in Ordinance No. 29501. At the same time, it seemed to me to be generally conceded that these restrictions, so far as they interfered with the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission, were ineffective and invalid. No proceeding, to my knowledge, was ever brought to test the ordinance, or to have the offensive provisions eliminated from it. To clear the situation, I am asking the Board of Aldermen to repeal Ordinance No. 29501 and to re-enact another in its place, which, after a number of conferences with the city's technical and legal advisers, I am convinced will do away with the objectionable provisions of the old ordinance, and will definitely govern the use of the bridge upon terms that are fair to your association and to all other railroads, and which will give the city a reasonable return on its investment."

"In carrying out the present plan, it may become necessary to cross industrial tracks of the

"Mr. C. H. Markham, President, Illinois Central Railroad, Chicago, Ill. "DEAR Mr. Markham: I am enclosing a plan for the use of the Municipal Bridge at St. Louis, also copy of a letter I have today addressed to Mr. L. W. Baldwin, president of the Missouri Pacific Railroad.

"You can see at a glance I am sure that this plan will be of great benefit to your railroad, and will also assist in the development of the St. Louis industrial district.

"May I urge you to lend your cooperation in carrying into effect the plan herewith presented?

Note to Baldwin.

"Mr. L. W. Baldwin, President, Missouri Pacific Railway, St. Louis, Mo. "DEAR Mr. Baldwin: I am enclosing hereto a plan for the use of the Municipal Bridge. You as a railroad man should be able to discern at first sight its possibilities. I call upon you as a public-spirited citizen of St. Louis and as a man interested in the development of the City of St. Louis and surrounding community, to co-operate with us in solving this problem. You can without any great difficulty play a prominent part in the solution of this situation.

TO THROW SPAN OPEN TO ALL RAILROADS ON 'USER' BASIS

Has Ordinance Drafted Repealing Old Hampering Conditions—Asks for Funds to Build Needed Connections.

COUNTERS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE SCHEME

Provides for Gratiot Street Link and Southern Approach—Exchange of Uses of Eads and City Bridges Still Possible.

A plan for immediate use of the Municipal Bridge by the railroads, without waiting for the proposed exchange of uses of the Eads and Municipal bridges, was announced today by Mayor Miller. The Alton & Southern railroad, an East Side terminal line, has made a definite proposal to begin use of the bridge, if permitted to make necessary connections.

The Mayor called a special session of the Board of Aldermen, now in vacation, to meet next Tuesday morning, to act on the ordinance proposals which he has had drafted and which are necessary to the plan. One of the ordinances will provide for constructing the southern approach to the bridge, for which $1,500,000 was provided by the 1923 bond issue.

Outlines of the plan have been sent by the Mayor to President Henry Miller of the Terminal Railroad Association; to President Baldwin of the Missouri Pacific, President Markham of the Illinois Central, and President Cotter of the Manufacturer's Railway.

Asks Roads to Co-operate.

The Mayor asks the Terminal Association not to object to construction of a proposed track on Gratiot street, crossing industrial tracks of the Terminal. He asks the Missouri Pacific and Illinois Central to construct an approach connecting the Municipal Bridge with their yards at Valley Junction. It is contemplated that, when the Alton & Southern has begun its use of the bridge the Missouri Pacific and Illinois Central will find it to their advantage to route freight over the bridge, and it is considered that, by a traffic arrangement with the Missouri Pacific it will be possible for the Frisco, Wabash and Rock Island to use the bridge.

"This plan, I believe," the Mayor declared in presenting the proposal, "will make it possible for at least 150,000 cars to be transported over the Municipal Bridge in the next 18 months." He further predicted that, if the plan is accepted, "within a year the Terminal Association and all other railroads will be connecting, approximately, with the Municipal Bridge."

"User" Basis Proposed.

Two important points in the legislative part of the program are (1) repeal of the ordinance (No. 29501) now governing the use of the bridge, which is held to be legally invalid, as it purports to control rates charged on interstate traffic; and (2) establishment of the "user" basis of charge, for use of the bridge, with a definite rate of charge for each locomotive and FRANCE FINDS LEVER FOR NEW DEAL WITH U. S.

Churchill's Letter on Possible Modification of British Terms Interpreted as Suggestion to America.

DAWES PLAN AS BASIS OF PAYMENT

Developments Apparently Make Certain That French Chamber Will Not Approve Mellon Terms.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 15.—The French franc, which long has been dropping, today reached a new low record, being quoted officially at the closing of the Bourse at 40.55 to the dollar and 197.10 to the pound. Today's slump was attributed to the sudden realization by financiers that the last statement of the Bank of France revealed that there were only $5,000,000 francs left for advances to the State, unless the present legal limit be ignored. This Bank of France's weekly statement shows that the State borrowed another 100,000,000 francs in addition to the $50,000,000 borrowed last week.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

PARIS, July 15.—The Franco-British war debt settlement has, in effect, made impossible the ratification of the Mellon-Berenger accord as written. The French Chamber, already determined not to ratify the American debt terms, now has backing of a character to put ratification out of the question.

Finance Minister Caillaux's position has changed since he obtained from Chancellor Churchill of the British exchequer the right to reopen the question of war debts if Germany fails to carry out the Dawes plan. Churchill's intimation that it is up to the United States to make a similar concession is a factor.

Attention is called in parliamentary groups to the deliberate use of the phrase, "Dawes plan," instead of reparations in Caillaux's letter. This was done to get around American susceptibilities over coupling war debts with reparations.

The Dawes plan being considered America's successful peace intervention in Europe, use of this phrase is regarded as a diplomatic opening for an exchange of letters between Washington and Paris, giving France the same assurance from Washington it now has from Britain.

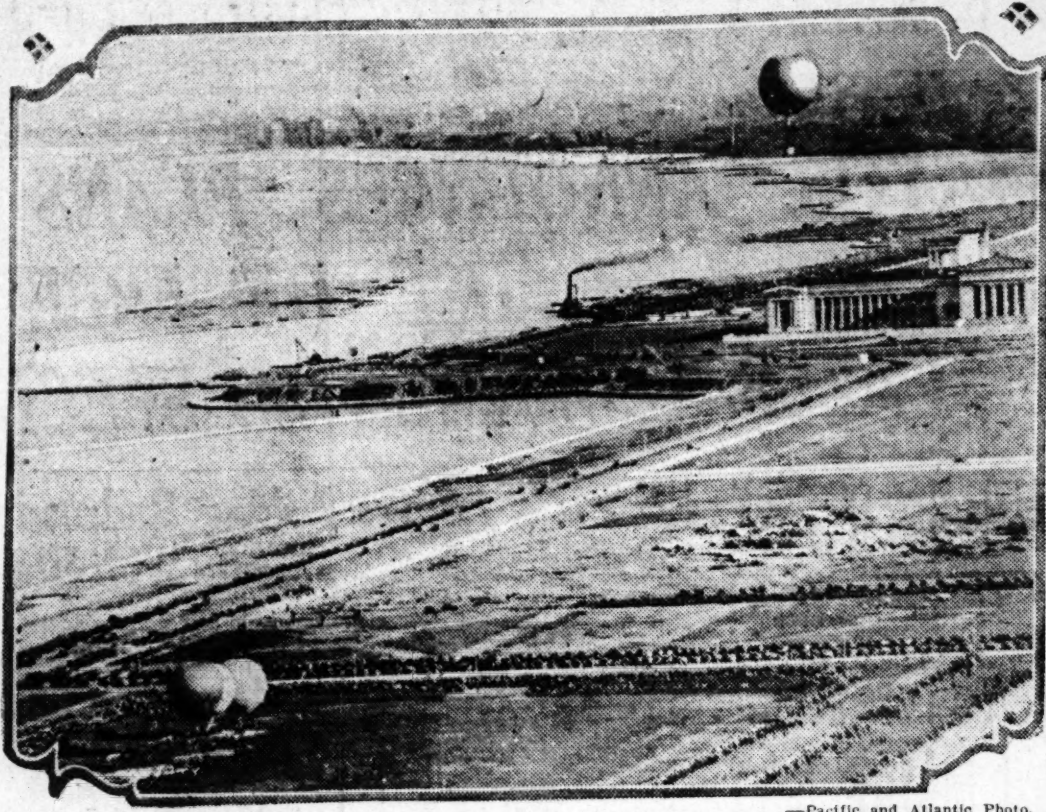

A practical effect is that Caillaux cannot bring the Mellon-Berenger accord up for ratification until the United States has gone as far as Churchill. Parliament would not listen to him; it has too good an excuse now for refusing. Churchill has made it diplomatically uncomfortable for the United States to stand pat on the record as signed. From the European viewpoint, the United States is placed under pressure to make the same concessions to France as Britain.

The careful wording of Churchill's last paragraph, "In the event of any modification being made, I should expect, in order to secure equal treatment among creditors, that other creditors of France would take into consideration a corresponding modification of debts due them," is interpreted here as an immediate suggestion to the United States to agree now to possible modification later.

Importance of Quick Action. For the United States to make a statement similar to Churchill's most effectively, it must do it now, in the French view. Otherwise the American act will lose its importance. The moderate conservative opinion in the country and in Parliament, where a majority is yet to be found for ratification of the Mellon-Berenger accord, is expressed in L'Intransigeant as follows:

"The experts' committee said that settlement of debts was the first act to reconstruct France. The ministry followed the plan. The rapidity with which the London agreement was reached and the guarantees with which it was surrounded make impossible the ratification of the Washington agreement unless complemented by the same considerations. England is not, like its superb friend across the Atlantic, menaced by unprecedented prosperity.

"England realizes it has nothing to gain from our loss. She held out to us her hand with a spontaneity which does her honor. This reinforces our position toward the United States Government. They say negotiations are already under way. By whom? Let us profit by the historian, Jacques Bainville, writing in two ultra conservative newspapers, L'Action Francaise and La Liberté, says the Government now admits what always was known, that reparations and debts are one problem, with Germany at one end and America at the other. While not so stating, the tone of Bainville's comment is that Europe would do well to pool its economic interests as against the United States, and, by encouraging Germany's not to make payments, put an end to payments to America.

JARDINE CALLS WORLD CONFERENCE ON COTTON

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Secretary Jardine has sent invitations to European cotton exchanges and associations to participate in an international conference at the American Embassy in London on the proposed establishment of universal staple standards for cotton. Aug. 10 has been fixed tentatively as the date.

Invitations were sent to the Liverpool Cotton Association, Ltd., Manchester Cotton Association, Ltd., Bremen Cotton Exchange, Havre Cotton Exchange, Italian Cotton Exchange, Barcelona Cotton Exchange, Rotterdam Cotton Exchange, Ghent Cotton Exchange, the Federation of Master Spinners Associations and representatives of American exporters.

The department believes that establishment of universal staple standards will facilitate marketing of the crop, tend to make quotations more comparable, and make export statistics more reliable.

WARNS ABOUT GERMAN MARKS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—A warning against speculation in bank notes and bonds of the former German paper mark currency was issued here today by the German Embassy, which called attention to the fact that the paper mark currency, after losing its value, had been abolished and replaced by a new Reichsmark currency. The paper mark bank notes, the Embassy said, included a watermark of 1919 stamped with a red seal which, it is understood here, prices up to $230 per million marks have been paid recently in New York.

There has been a revaluation of a few paper mark bonds and securities. "Their value, if any," the statement said, "depends entirely upon the rate of revaluation. But they seem to be offered frequently to the investing public under misrepresentations as to their value, creating the wrong impression that there was some chance of future profits."

SHIP SLAYER'S BODY 50 YEARS

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 15.—The body of Willie Green, Negro, hanged 50 years ago near the end of his travels today after a half century of fruitless search for a final resting place. Green was executed for the murder of his half brother.

Relatives claimed the body, had it embalmed and prepared for burial, but for some reason it was forgotten. Years passed, with one undertaker passing the body on to another until nearly 20 had had possession of it. Yesterday Oscar Miller, its latest custodian, turned the body over to the city morgue for cremation.

TELLS OF $10,000 BRIBE OFFERED BY LIQUOR RUNNER

Chief Boatwain of Coast Guard Patrol Searched Lumber Barge, Found Scotch Whisky Cargo.

By the Associated Press.

NORFOLK, Va., July 15.—Ten thousand dollars in cash, payable in Norfolk, was offered him if he would permit the alleged rum-running barge, Margaret Egan, to proceed on its way. Chief Boatwain R. K. Middleton, commanding the Coast Guard patrol boat, CG-89, testified at the hearings of the four members of the barge crew, before United States Commissioner Mahone.

All four were held for Federal Court under $10,000 bond. The members of the crew gave their names as James Gordon, alleged to be the master of the barge; John O'Reilly, John Britton and James Ryan.

Middleton declared that his vessel stopped the barge Monday night, near the York Spit Light and was told by someone on the barge that it was on its way from Elizabeth City, N. C., to Baltimore, with a cargo of lumber. A search, he said, disclosed a cargo of approximately 20,000 feet of lumber, while piled high in an unusually deep hold was a quantity of Scotch whisky, estimated to be between 5000 and 6000 cases.

Middleton further testified that Gordon offered him first $5000 and then $10,000 if he would permit the barge which was in tow of the tug Sparrow III, to proceed without further molestation.

THREE TAXI CHAUFFEURS ORDERED TO REPAINT CABS

Color Resembles Those of Concern Which Had Obtained Injunction.

By the Associated Press.

Three chauffeurs who operated privately-owned taxicabs, which resembled in color and design the cars of the Yellow Motor Cab Co., were ordered by Circuit Judge Mix today to take their machines off the streets until they had been repainted. On the motion of the Yellow company injunction were issued restraining the chauffeurs—Edward F. Davis, John Gorman and Edward L. Holmberg—from imitating the appearance of Yellow cabs.

Officers of the cab company declared that "fares" had entered the three cabs thinking they were Yellow cabs and on one occasion a passenger sought to collect damages from the Yellow company after an accident.

The defendants asserted that their cabs were orange, not yellow. Two of the machines were brought to the courthouse with a Yellow cab and were inspected by the Judge.

West End Business Men Oppose Bridge Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

The West End Business Men's Association, meeting last night at the Melbourne Hotel, passed a resolution opposing the proposed exchange of uses of the Municipal and Eads bridges. The resolution stated that the Municipal Bridge should remain a free bridge, open to all lines on equal terms. The Association also discussed the proposed street railway franchise, but took no action upon it. City Counselor Muehich spoke on the franchise proposal, and C. E. Smith, consulting engineer for the city, on the bridge exchange.

THREE PILOTS DOWN IN BALLOON RACE

"Hi-Ball" Leads for Elks' Prize — "Detroit" Alone Unreported.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 15.—The "Hi-Ball" balloon, entered in the Elks' national balloon race by Svend A. U. Rasmussen of Detroit, landed at 6:15 a. m., Eastern standard time, today five miles south of Portland, Ark., and took the lead in the contest, according to word today to the National Aeronautic Association here. Portland, Ark., is 625 miles on an air line southwest of Chicago.

The Goodyear IV of Akron, O., piloted by C. K. Wallum, landed at 3:15 p. m. yesterday at Huron, Tenn. It was in the air 21 hours and 15 minutes and traveled 415 miles.

The Detroit of the Detroit Flying Club, was unaccounted for. The fourth entrant, the Greater St. Louis Exposition, that of Capt. H. E. Honeywell of St. Louis, was forced down yesterday at Thompsonville, Ill., with a leaky intake, and was first to land.

Aeronautic Association officers today appealed to the Weather Bureau to aid in a search of Eastern Tennessee and Northern Alabama for the Detroit.

The "Hi-Ball" is believed to have set a new national record for balloons of 35,000 cubic feet capacity.

BAR ASSOCIATION RAKES PATERNALISM

Americans Bartering Liberties for Bounties and Bonuses, It Declares.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., July 15.—Increasing paternalism of the Federal Government was scored today by the American Bar Association. The organization's forty-ninth annual convention placed itself on record through adoption of the report made by its committee on American citizenship, which decried the increasing tendency toward centralization in government.

"The Roman citizens bartered their ancient liberties for bread and circuses," said the report. "The American citizen today is bartering his individual liberties and rights for government bounties and bonuses. He demands government interference in everything and surrenders his individuality in return for it. The American citizen is being pauperized by government alms. If he supports the government he asks the government in return to support him."

The report was signed by James M. Meek, former Solicitor General for the United States; F. Dumont Smith, Hutchinson, Kan.; Charles E. Matson, Lincoln, Neb.; Thomas J. Norton, Chicago, and D. W. Simms, Lafayette, Ind.

The report of the committee also contained an indictment of law schools and colleges as the training ground of the legal profession. After declaring that "law schools of the country are not teaching the Constitution," the report recommended that each prospective candidate for admission to the bar be required to pass an examination on the Federal Constitution.

The convention also approved the report of its standing committee on jurisprudence and law reform which the body went on record as opposing the adoption by Congress of a bill introduced by Senator Caraway (Dem.) of Arkansas, that has for its purpose "substantial curtailment of the powers of trial judges."

The report further recommended a revision of Federal judicial circuit, providing for another circuit to be composed of part of the Eighth Circuit, which now contains thirteen Middle Western and Western states, and of a few states from the Fifth and Ninth circuits.

Detective Denies That She Gave Him Telegram Saying Evangelist Was Safe.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, July 15.—Hermon Cline, chief of detectives, today directly contradicted the statement of Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of Alvin Karpis, former evangelist, that she turned over to him a telegram she received from Oakland, May 21, announcing that he daughter, then believed to have been drowned at the beach May 18, was alive and well.

Milton C. Carlson, expert, testified today before the grand jury that the original telegram to Mrs. Kennedy is in the handwriting of Kenneth G. Ormiston, former radio operator at Angelus Temple and friend of Mrs. McPherson. Ormiston has disappeared. The telegram was filed in Oakland, Cal. It bears an almost illegible signature as "Dr. Murten," said: "Daughter O. K. Do not worry. Communication proven. Am signing for J. T. A., whom I believe O. K. Detail in mail."

LONDON, July 15.—Lincoln C. Andrews, American prohibition enforcement chief, here to seek of official British co-operation in fighting liquor runners, announced after the first conference today that every indication pointed to the successful conclusion of his mission within a week. Andrews left the Foreign Office after a two-hour discussion palpably pleased and wearing a broad smile. He described the meeting as most propitious.

Before the meeting the American Treasury official and his aid were received by Sir Austen Chamberlain. The British Foreign Secretary assured Andrews of co-operation. The Americans will be guests of the Government tomorrow at a luncheon. The British representatives at the conferences are Sir Charles Hilwood, of the Board of Trade; R. G. Van Sittart, of the Foreign Office; Capt. H. P. Douglas, of the Admiralty; J. T. B. Grylls, of the Customs Department and L. E. Freeston, of the Colonial Department.

An Announcement Concerning Next Week's Municipal Opera Production of "Iolanthe"

"Iolanthe" the Gilbert & Sullivan operetta which the Municipal Theatre Association will present at the Municipal Theatre, Forest Park, next week, beginning Monday night, is the current leading musical hit of New York. Crowded houses are applauding nightly the scintillating music and witty libretto that have established this famous piece as a classic of light opera.

While the New York production is a notable one, the St. Louis presentation will surpass it in many ways. Municipal Opera's famous light opera cast—the most talented artists in their field—will sing the leading roles; Municipal Opera's chorus of 96—one of the finest singing bodies in the world, will sparkle in the ensemble numbers, and a symphony orchestra of 50 will play Sir Arthur Sullivan's superb music.

New York is paying $3.00 per seat at the box office, and more at the ticket brokers, to see "Iolanthe." Notwithstanding the greater magnitude of the St. Louis production, the regular Municipal Opera scale of prices will prevail for the local performances. Reserved seats may be obtained for 25c, 50c, $1.00, $1.50 and $2.00 (Box Seats), with over half the capacity of the Municipal Theatre available at 25c and 50c.

WILLIAMS INTEREST SENATE RACE IN SOUTH MISSOURI

Williams Speaking to Small Audiences but Seems to Be in Lead in Republican Fight.

POSTMASTERS HIS CHIEF BACKERS
Announcement of Hawes on Democratic Side Accepted Virtually Everywhere in Section as Certainty.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

POPULAR BLUFF, Mo., July 15.—Southwest Missouri is considerably more interested in how the election is going to turn out than in the question of whether the Republican or Democratic nominee for the United States Senate, in fact, it is anybody at all concerned about the pending political campaign other than a few Postmasters, a few state food and drug inspectors, a Deputy Game Warden and there and such others as look to politics for a livelihood, he has not made his interest known in any section of the State except of explanation.

On the Democratic side the nomination of Congressman Harry B. Hawes over his opponents, Judge Irving Cockrell and Willis H. Meredith, is accepted virtually everywhere as a certainty, and so there is nothing for Democratic leaders to bother about in regard to the senatorship. On the Republican side, the situation is somewhat different, but the apathy is as nearly universal.

The general run of Republican voters including a good many of the job-holders who are pretending an enthusiasm they do not feel, do not give a hoot who gets the nomination. The job holders are for Senator Williams, and in this section it looks like they are going to take a majority of the voters who go to the polls with them.

Williams' Audiences Small.
The Senator has failed completely to arouse any hip-hip-hoorahs. He is speaking daily to small audiences. No to exceed 150 persons heard him in Sikeston Tuesday night. His audience in Poplar Bluff last night did not exceed 250. He delivers a religiously reasoned-out address in such the manner and with all the dignity he would employ in presenting an argument on a technical proposition to the Supreme Court, and he receives little more applause than he would get from the Supreme Court on such an occasion. In the Sikeston speech he was applauded four times, quite vigorously when he was introduced, but little less vigorously when he stated his opposition to the World Court, with some groans of enthusiasm when he paid a personal tribute to Congressman Bailey, who represents this, the Fourteenth District, and again when he made the audience good night.

The Poplar Bluff meeting was better organized than the one at Sikeston and the applause was frequent, the audience applauding seven times very enthusiastically when he was introduced, three times during his statement of opposition to the League of Nations and the World Court, again at an expression that the hope of the country rested in the protective tariff, again when he referred to the great service Senator Reed performed for the Republican party in 1920 and again when he concluded his speech.

Rural Missouri audiences have been accustomed to the oratory of Senator Reed, Champ Clark and former Governor Hyde, and they have liked it. There is nothing of the orator about Williams. He delivers a rather cold, passionless argument which does not strike fire. He has a carefully worked-out explanation of the Hawes bill and what its effect on the farmers' income would have been had it passed, but the explanation is difficult to follow, involving as it does, mathematical calculations of hundreds of millions of dollars and hundreds of millions of bushels of wheat, with additions, subtractions, divisions and percentages.

Dull as Political Argument.
It might be, it would come near reaching the audience if the Senator would carry along a school blackboard and a piece of chalk, or if he would have prepared next diagrams which he could turn as he talked. But it does not get over as a political argument. Rural Missourians would prefer the "Woody Della" of Jim Reed, the homey stories of Champ Clark or the biting sarcasms of Arthur Hyde.

One of Williams' supporters expressed the seemingly general impression after the Sikeston speech: "That won't wake the boys up. What we need is fire if we are expected to get voters to the polls. The Senator will have to arouse some enthusiasm."

David M. Proctor, as the "dry evangelist" candidate, whose campaign against the demon rum might be expected to arouse the fighting spirit of the "drys," has no more enthusiasm among his supporters in this section of the State than has Williams, if as much. And Williams is in even better situation throughout this section than is Proctor, as there is a real Williams organization in nearly every county, while there is no semblance of a Proctor organization except in a few counties.

True, the Williams organization is mostly dominated by job-holders, or politicians who for one reason or another are close, either to Gov. Baker, National Committeeman Clements or the State organization.

Postmasters Main Backers.
The bulk of the Williams strength in Southeast Missouri is in Bob Davis of Fredericktown, Jim Finch of New Madrid, Postmaster H. H. Haas of Cape Girardeau, Postmaster E. E. Whitworth of Poplar Bluff, Carl Blomker of Caruthersville and L. M. Henson of Poplar Bluff. They have operated principally through employees of State departments, but even they have failed to arouse an interest in the candidate. An incident which occurred here yesterday is something of an indication of the feeling.

J. H. Wolpers, editor of the Poplar Bluff Republican and a dry, had been asked to introduce Williams last night. He took the matter under consideration and in the afternoon informed the committee: "I want you to get somebody else. I probably will vote for Williams, in fact, I can't see anybody else to vote for, but I don't want to introduce him. When I cannot enthusiastically support a candidate, I don't want to be a hypocrite and give the impression that I am for him enthusiastically."

There undoubtedly is a latent Proctor strength in this section. There is no reason why Proctor should not receive a sizable vote in all of these counties. But it is a vote which will not get to the polls unless there is a working organization to see that it gets there. There is not a sign of such an organization in any of these counties.

One County for Proctor.
In Dunklin County a couple of weeks ago there was an incident that shows what possibly may be done for Proctor. It might be mentioned that the Democratic majority in Dunklin County is so big that no Republican ever wants to go to the trouble of running for office, knowing defeat by an overwhelming majority is certain. But to keep up a semblance of organization and to aid in bringing out as many Republicans as possible for the benefit of the State ticket, it is customary for the Republicans to meet and draft candidates for county offices.

The meeting under discussion was for that purpose. It was not a Proctor meeting, but along in the proceedings somebody offered a resolution endorsing Proctor, and it was adopted with only a few scattering negative votes. One or two speakers expressed doubt of the political advisability of its adoption but the resolution did not meet serious opposition.

Except in communities in which there are many radical wets, and these are principally communities in which the population is largely of German descent, there is little talk of Blodgett Priest, the wet Republican candidate, and the indications are that his vote here will be nominal.

As it stands now, Williams will carry Southeast Missouri, but any estimate of the size of his majority would be rank guess work without any real facts to go on. He might be defeated if Proctor could succeed in building up an active get out the dry vote organization, but the time for that is growing short, still, it might be done. On the other hand Williams might be able to win a strong lead if he or his supporters could find some means of interesting the voters usually to be reached by regular organization methods. It may be said there is no indication of either, and the probabilities are that there will be a very light vote. This is Meredith's home county, and it is the general opinion here that he will carry the county, largely through a desire to have a home man make a good showing at home, but the Democratic vote in Butler County is small and can have no appreciable effect on the race as a state-wide proposition.

Williams' Pica to Women.
Williams, in his speech last night, made a strong drive to wean from Proctor his support among the women Republican voters. Williams produced records of the Missouri Legislature in support of a declaration that Proctor's sympathy with women came only when he became a candidate for office. First taking up a resolution for a constitutional amendment to permit women to hold office Williams said the records showed that Proctor was present but did not vote on the resolution in the 1921 Legislature. He next took up the 50-50 bill in the 1923 Legislature, a measure to give women equal representation with men on political party committees. Williams said the record showed that Proctor voted against the bill.

Proctor's strength is supposed to lie principally with the women and the Williams' supporters expect that a showing of his attitude on these measures in which women were particularly interested will serve to cool their interest in him.

Denies Party Disloyalty.
The Senator last night passed the lie to Proctor and those of the Proctor organization who have raised the question of his party regularity. Though not directly answering the charge that he voted for Senator Reed, a Democrat,

Williams said: "Some gentlemen seem to be put to their wits and to manufacture attacks on my party loyalty and they lie when they do it."

Again he avoided a direct statement of his attitude toward amendment of the Volstead act though he said "regardless of whether a man is wet or dry if he is an honest man and tells you he will carry out the provisions of the Republican platform he will do so." He then read the platform declaration of 1920, declaring for enforcement of the Constitution and all laws, and pledged himself to observe it.

In asserting that Proctor, running as a dry, was soliciting wet votes in St. Louis, Williams read Proctor's recent remarks setting out the campaign among Republicans for Reed in 1922, and asserting that Reed had been able to do nothing toward a change in the Volstead act. Williams in this connection and seemingly to account for Republican support of Reed, said: "Jim Reed did a great service for the Republican party in 1920 and got thrown out of the Democratic party for doing it."

Admits Holdup Report Is False.
John Martin, 35 years old, a cabinetmaker of 4446 Page boulevard, called the Twelfth District Police Station last night and reported that he had been held up by two men about 11:30 p. m. and robbed of several dollars. He met Patrolman Kramer and repeated the story to him, saying the robbery had taken place in an alley on Page boulevard, east of Newstead avenue. Kramer had just completed inspection of the alley and said no holdup had occurred there, so he took Martin to the station for questioning, where he confessed that the report was false.

MUNICIPAL EXPERTS STUDY ST. LOUIS

One Thinks Efficiency Board Has Taken Backward Step —Nolte's Office Praised.

Two experts on municipal government, who have visited St. Louis in the last few days, have reached varying conclusions about the special phases of city administration which they have examined here.

Fred Telford, director of the Bureau of Public Personnel Administration, with offices in the Mills Building, Washington, has been looking into the workings of the Efficiency Board.

Telford, before leaving the city yesterday, declined to talk in detail of his findings here, saying he had made an inspection, rather than a complete survey. But he said that he believed the Efficiency Board has taken a "backward step" in one respect. This was the abandonment of promotional examinations in the Fire Department. Instead of such examinations, promotions are now made on the basis of efficiency ratings made by the District Chiefs. Telford said the change was contrary to the usage of most large cities, and that promotional examinations were usually considered better. He would not say what he thought of the general trend of the Efficiency Board's work.

SWOPE HEIRS AGREE TO SALE Dr. B. Clark Hyde's Divorced Wife Gets Court Order in Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, July 15.—The building at the southeast corner of Eleventh street and Grand avenue, in the heart of Kansas City's residential district, will be sold under an order issued yesterday by Circuit Judge Hall. The order specified that no bid under $950,000 be accepted. The building is under 99-year lease, contracted March 1 by Kline's store. The building stands on ground which was a part of the original Swope addition. Mrs. Frances Swope, formerly Miss Frances Hyde, formerly the divorced wife of Dr. B. Clark Hyde, petitioned the court for the order of sale. She stated that other heirs to the property had agreed to the sale.

Following the death of Col. Thomas H. Swope, the original owner, Dr. Hyde was tried three times on a charge of having murdered him. The first trial resulted in a conviction which was reversed and the case remanded by the State Supreme Court. The second trial was declared a mistrial and the third trial resulted in a hung jury, after which prosecution was dropped. Dr. Hyde now practices medicine in Lexington, Mo.

ington, has spent two weeks in an examination of city accounting methods, using the Comptroller's office as his headquarters. He said today that he had found St. Louis one of the most economically administered of large cities, and that the system of accounting and checking is particularly good. It is much easier to survey the finances of the city than of most others, he said, because of the excellence of the system used here.

WINNER OF 14-YEAR LEGAL FIGHT OVER PLAY

MRS. GRACE A. FENDLER.

THE New York Appellate Court, following 14 years of litigation, has upheld the claim of Mrs. Fendler to authorship of "The Bird of Paradise," and has awarded her damages against Oliver Morosco, producer, and Richard Walton Tully, playwright, who, the court held had plagiarized her play.

FUNERAL OF VICTIM OF BLAST

The funeral of James Clarence Carroll, 25 years old, who was killed in a gasoline explosion at 3:30 p. m. today, from an undertaking establishment at 4449 Olive street to the Valhalla Cemetery. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Carroll, 1209 North Grand boulevard.

Carroll was killed while working on his automobile in the paint shop of the Hayes Hunt Corporation where he was foreman. He had placed a can of cleaning fluid containing gasoline near the hot engine of his machine, and it exploded. He sustained severe burns from which he died five hours later. His wife, formerly Miss Beatrice Clark of Alton, and a 4-year-old son survive him.

MARKETING AID IN WISCONSIN

By the Associated Press.
MADISON, Wis.—The loaning of money to producers on bonded warehouse receipts, as an aid to orderly marketing of products, has become firmly established with the recent granting of products, has become firmly established with the recent granting of a loan to the Wisconsin Cheese Producers' Federation, in the opinion of C. N. Pulley, specialist of the State Department of Markets.

The warehouse of the federation, situated in various cheese-producing sections of Wisconsin, and having a total capacity of more than 2,000,000 pounds, have just been bonded and a loan was granted by one of the leading banks of Milwaukee. The bank, by this action, it was stated, "signified its willingness to accept State bonded warehouse receipts as collateral for loans."

It is no secret

After all, there is no mystery about Heinz Ketchup—no secret process or ingredient. Briefly, the story of its better flavor is this:

Heinz develops the pedigreed seed and supervises the growth of the tomatoes. The tomatoes are picked when sun-ripe, then cooked and blended immediately with selected spices and pure sugar. All surplus water is boiled away. Pure, rich Ketchup—and pure rich Ketchup only—is left.

But all this is done in the Heinz way, which gives uniform quality, and is the only secret—the real secret of our success.

20 TURKISH PLOTTERS FACE EXECUTION

Accused of Plot to Overthrow Present Regime; Ex-Cabinet Members Defendants.

By the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 15.—The Kemalist Government, having executed 13 alleged plotters at Smyrna, will place 20 more men on trial at Angora on similar charges. Among the defendants will be the men who directed the committee of Union and Progress and whose places later were taken by the members of the present government.

Those to face trial include Djavit Bey, former minister of finance, and his colleagues, Enver Tallat and Djemal Pasha. They are credited in some quarters with having had much to do with Turkey's entrance into the World War, and to be the authors of the 1915 massacres. The Government claims to have proof that these men were working secretly to overthrow the present authorities.

The same tribunal that sat at Smyrna and sentenced 13 men to death Tuesday will try the unionists at Angora. It also will try Reouf Bey, Kemal's first premier, and Adnan Bey, former deputy, on similar charges at Constantinople. Adnan Bey is the husband of Halide Edib Hanem, the noted woman nationalist leader who has been ranked with Madame Kemal Pasha as the foremost exponent of women's rights in Turkey.

Leader of Plot Hanged Twice—Execution Carried Out in Dark.

By the Associated Press.

SMYRNA, July 15.—It was necessary to hang Chukri Bey, leader of a plot to kill President Mustafa Kemal Pasha, twice last night. The first time he was hanged from a tripod on the water front, but the rope broke and he fell to the ground.

Many of those who witnessed the incident, especially the women, interpreted this as a sign that the victim ought to be pardoned, but the executioners removed him to another tripod set up in front of the City Hall, where he was dispatched without further delay.

Thirteen conspirators were hanged at widely separated points because the new Turkish penal code prescribes that a condemned man must not see another executed.

Each of the men hanged wore a placard reading "Condemned to death for having plotted against the life of our beloved Mustafa Kemal Pasha, President of the Republic and savior of the honor of the Turkish nation."

The executions were carried out in complete darkness. The streets were filled with soldiers.

Djam Bolet Bey, former Minister of the Interior before going to his death, predicted disaster for the Kemalist Government.

The bodies were left hanging, exposed to public view, until noon, when they were cut down. The women then struggled for pieces of the ropes, believing that they would bring good luck.

The plotters planned to have a hand grenade given to Kemal in a bouquet by a woman. The 13 hanged were convicted after 50 arrests had been made.

WOUNDED WAR VETERAN GETS LIFE SENTENCE FOR MURDER

Everett J. Lee Pleaded Guilty of Killing Butcher in Chicago Court.

CHICAGO, July 15.—Everett Johnson Lee, 29 years old, wounded veteran of almost every major engagement of the American Expeditionary Forces during the World War, has been sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder, Jan. 13, of William Fuchs, a butcher. He pleaded guilty.

Lee's attorneys stated he was still suffering from shell shock and that the attempted robbery and killing was not done while Lee was in possession of his mental faculties.

Judge Lynch, in passing sentence, said: "I cannot turn this man loose, perhaps to kill again, and so I shall have to sentence him to jail for the rest of his life. If his mind becomes still further weakened, he will be transferred to the asylum for criminal insane at Chester."

DRIVER ESCAPES WHEN TRAIN STRIKES AUTO AT CROSSING

Louis Zahner, 42, Suffers Wrenched Back by Jumping Machine Is Demolished.

Some one whistled a warning to Louis Zahner, 42 years old, of Rock Hill road, south of Webster Groves, as he was about to drive across the Burlington Railroad tracks on Mulhenny street last night. He turned to observe the whistler and just then a switching train, backing, bore down on his Dodge touring car. He had only enough time to leap out, wrenching his back and right shoulder. The car was demolished.

Not finding a policeman he went home, causing a police search later to learn if any one had been badly hurt. Zahner is a foreman at a Laclede Gas Light Co. plant near the scene.

Greatest demonstration of my life

No Car But Hupmobile Eight Will Ever Satisfy Me Now

What a demonstration I've just had in the beautiful Hupmobile Eight!

It's changed all my concepts of what modern eight-cylinder performance really is, and has given me an entirely new idea as to eight-cylinder costs.

If I were to say what I really think about the Hupmobile Eight, I would have to call it phenomenal. To my mind, it can't be compared to any other kind or type of car.

And by that I mean the wonderful quality at a price approximately $2500, as well as performance and all the other superiorities I found.

In the first six blocks of my ride I woke up to the fact that I was in a new kind of eight.

Then I moved over into the driver's seat. This car had something different in it, and I wanted to get the kick of learning its points myself.

And, what a demonstration that cardid give me. Pick-up?—quick and agile, and smooth and purling as a stream of water. Power seems to flow of itself. I got away first—and could stay first all day if I wanted. I started in second every time.

Smoothness—I'm forever set on the idea that this Hupmobile Eight is the smoothest thing on four wheels. There's an engine under the hood, of course; but you certainly can't sense it by any of the usual signs of labored motion.

And believe me it handles beautifully—you don't push it around, you simply guide it. That's no small advantage to a man who drives as long and as hard as I do.

If this is important to me as a man, I can realize what it must mean to a woman.

I've heard the phrase "irons out the rough spots"—but I've just come in from a ride in which I experienced it. The road we went over was rough, but our going was smooth. There's a rythm about this Hupmobile Eight travel that cradles you.

And easy on gas!—I never dreamed that any eight could deliver this kind of performance—and if it did it would do it only at a wasteful cost.

Right there I got another new idea—I learned that this Hupmobile is not only economical of gas, but easy on upkeep as well. I found it costs no more to run than a lesser car.

I looked into the way it is designed and built, too. I found, for instance, that it has an entirely new valve mechanism assembly—costly to make, but a joy for the owner. It is efficient and quiet and stays that way. It eliminates back pressure—brings a really smooth flow of power.

I found that the Hupmobile Eight crankshaft is literally enormous in diameter—and very short in length. No whip, no strain—just smooth as silk and steady as a die. I found manufacturing precision and quality that goes beyond anything I've ever seen.

To complete my admiration and enthusiasm, I found a body of surpassing beauty—not only outside but inside as well. The lines are flowing and graceful.

The finish is superb. The upholstery is all I could desire, and the room is so generous that I should call it spacious.

I've always had respect for the name Hupmobile. I've known for years it stood for honest value and fine manufacturing.

Now, they've shown me more in this Hupmobile Eight than I ever hoped to find; and from this day on I'm a Hupmobile Eight owner—and a man who has found a new pleasure in driving.

LIFE SENTENCE FOR MURDER GIVEN ROBERT SCOTT

Judge Decides His Brother, Russell Scott, Awaiting Execution, Was Actual Slayer of Drug Clerk.

ALSO CONSIDERS HIS PLEA OF GUILTY

Crime Characterized as Cold-Blooded, Like of Which Jurist Had Never Before Heard.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, July 15.—Robert Scott was sentenced yesterday to life imprisonment for the murder of Joseph Maurer, a drug clerk, in a robbery April 2, 1924. His brother, Russell, is under sentence of death for the same murder.

Judge Gemmill in sentencing Robert Scott said Russell was the actual slayer.

Two factors, Judge Gemmill indicated, influenced him in imposing a life sentence rather than a death penalty, for the crimes, which he characterized as "a cold-blooded murder, the like of which I have not heard in my experience."

These factors were Robert Scott's plea of guilty and his testimony from the stand, together with other corroborating evidence, that he did not do the actual killing.

"Russell Took Initiative."

"While Robert is in a sense as guilty as his brother," the Judge said, "he is not by any means as much to blame as Russell, who the evidence now shows, was the actual murderer of Maurer."

"It appears that Russell took the initiative throughout the entire affair."

"According to the evidence, it seems to me that Robert did not intend to kill when he entered the place. If Robert had been blood-thirsty, he could have killed Joe Maurer at any time when they were scuffling together, and he had a pistol in his hand. The evidence shows that it was Russell who came up from behind and killed him."

"I do not think the death penalty is wrong, yet I have a feeling that a plea of guilty ought to always be given some consideration—unless the crime is so revolting that there is a universal demand for the extreme penalty. I do not believe that such a demand exists in the case of Robert Scott."

Found in California Prison:
The 25-year-old Robert, brought here after he was found in a California prison under an alias, refused to give testimony that would react against his brother. In his brief appearance on the stand yesterday he replied to a direct question as to whether he fired the fatal shot with a firm "I did not."

Russell Scott twice escaped the death penalty. In the same courtroom in which Robert was sentenced, Russell a year ago pleaded guilty and was sentenced to death. His attorney obtained permission to change his plea and a jury found Russell insane. After incarceration in the prison for the criminal insane, Russell recently was brought back and another jury found him sane. It was then he was sentenced to be hanged Oct. 15.

Russell T. Scott once was a successful promoter of financial concerns.

DEPOSITION OF MINISTER FILED IN GROVE-SEELY WILL SUIT

A. G. Lang Testifies Grove Was "Directing Genius" of the Paris Medicine Co.

Testimony that Edwin W. Grove was the "directing genius" of the Paris Medicine Co., of which he is president, was given in a deposition of the Rev. A. G. Lang, a Baptist minister of Buffalo Center, Ia., filed in Judge Ittner's court today. The deposition was taken by Grove's lawyers in the suit of F. L. Seely, Grove's son-in-law, to enforce an alleged agreement by which Grove was to leave the control of the medicine company to Seely in his will. The suit represents an ultimate claim to property worth $5,000,000 or more.

The minister formerly was an employee of Packe, Davis & Co. in Detroit, then Seely worked there, and later was employed by the Paris Medicine Co. He testified that Seely brought some new ideas to the Paris company, but said others did the same, and that Grove furnished the money to carry out the ideas. He said Seely collected royalties from the company on a machine for counting medicine tablets, which Lang and another employee aided in devising.

The witness said he left the company because he could not get along with Seely. "No one could, if he tried to use his own judgment or his own sense," the witness said.

They were married April 24, 1922, at Waterloo, Ill., and separated June 20 last.

OPPOSED TO STATE RELIGION

By the Associated Press.
BALTIMORE, Md., July 15.—Co-mingling of the functions of the church and the State was held in disfavor by the thirty-fourth international convention of the Lutheran Walther League. In session here, "We view with disfavor," read a resolution adopted by the 5000 delegates, "and deprecate any attempt by religious people or churches to use the authority or the implements of government for the incultation, propagation, or conservation of church interests and thus prepare the way for the establishment of a State religion and a State church."

GROWTH OF AIR MAIL ASSURES CONTINUANCE

Planes Complete 129 of 130 Trips on Schedule, Setting Record for Service.

Continuance of air mail for St. Louis is now assured, William B. Robertson, president of the Robertson Aircraft Corporation, said yesterday. There has been a steady increase in the use of the service ever since it was started April 15, he said, reaching its peak yesterday when 75 pounds were carried, as against about 30 pounds at the beginning.

In the time that planes have been in operation they have traveled 39,000 miles, making 130 trips, of which 129 were completed on schedule. On one trip the pilot was forced down by a storm within 30 miles of Chicago. This is the best record that has been made on any of the 12 air mail routes now in operation.

Assurances have been received from bankers and business men generally that with the coming of autumn the use of the service will be greatly increased. A series of advertisements is being printed in newspapers pointing out the advantage of the air mail and stimulating interest in it. Permission has been obtained for the placing of two maps, 12 feet square, on the Custom House, one at Eighth and Olive streets and one at Ninth and Olive streets, calling attention to the service.

Arrangements have been made for lighting the course between St. Louis and Chicago with revolving beacons at distances of 10 miles for the guidance of the pilots when, on short winter days, they will not be able to reach Chicago before nightfall. It is expected that they will be installed by Sept. 1.

STRIKE PICKETS ARRESTED

AT CLOTHING CONCERN PLANT
Chicago Union Organizer Also Held; Company Officials Had Complained of Interference.

Eight men and four women strike pickets were arrested by police in answering three riot calls today to the Standard Garment Co., clothing manufacturers, 410 North Jefferson avenue. All the prisoners were hooked at the Laclede Avenue Station on charges of "suspected of attempting to incite a riot."

Another man, said by police to be a union organizer of Chicago, was arrested a few blocks from the plant of the company, which employs more than 100 persons. He identified himself as Carl Berreiter, 29, and said he was stopping at the Warwick Hotel. Police report that the persons arrested were carrying banners and picketing in front of the plant. One of their banners read: "Standard Clothing Co. broke its contract with the union in Chicago. Strike on. Keep out."

Officials of the company recently have made complaints of interference with their employees by pickets. They assert that they have had no trouble with their employees, open-shop workers. Berreiter has told police an attempt was being made to unionize the plant.

THINKS FIRE AND WELL

POLLUTION DUE TO GRUDGE

Gustav, Schweiger Says He Found Trenches Dug to Obstruct Moving of House.

A $2500 fire and pollution of well water, which Gustav Schweiger of 5049 Lansdowne avenue, believes to be the outcome of a grudge against him arising in hearings last year at the City Hall on condemnation proceedings for improvement of Watson road, are being investigated by detectives of the Mounted District.

A two-story frame house owned by Schweiger of 6009 Bancroft avenue was damaged by fire Tuesday night. The fire started in a closet on the first floor, and Schweiger told police he believed it was incendiary. He said that he and his family and two workmen became ill 10 days ago after drinking from a well on the property, and recalled that when he moved the house from its original site on Watson road after the hearings he found trenches and rock piles to obstruct the moving.

AGENT IN SALE OF SALOON ACCUSED OF EMBEZZLEMENT

F. O. Lenz Paid With Worthless Checks, Says C. F. Reiter, Who Caused Arrest.

Frederick C. Lenz, 32 years old, who buys and sells businesses as the "St. Louis Exchange," in the Victoria Building, was arrested yesterday on a warrant charging embezzlement, issued on complaint of Charles F. Reiter of 2729 Lemand place.

Reiter says Lenz sold a saloon and garage for him in May for $1950, paying him $400 in cash and a check for $1550 which came back marked "insufficient funds." Lenz told police he intended to honor the check but his money had been tied up since he gave it.

Dog Finds Stolen Pocketbook.
Henri Chouteau Jr. of 26 Vandeventer place, found his dog playing with a pocketbook in the back yard last Tuesday. Inspection of its contents disclosed a railroad ticket and a bank book bearing the name Robert Zivi, 6273 Clemens avenue. Zivi had reported to police that his pocket had been picked last Saturday at the corner of Grand boulevard and Washington avenue, and that the pocketbook had contained $131.

Man Freed of Girl's Killing.

By the Associated Press.
CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., July 15. Under a directed verdict, Frank Bowler, grocer, was acquitted of a charge of murder in connection with the death of Miss Louise Griffin in June, 1925. Judge Cunningham, in directing the verdict, said that he could not sustain a verdict of guilty on proof submitted by the State. Bowler, in a statement made after his arrest, contended that the girl shot herself while they were riding in an automobile. He said that he was so unnerved that he did not realize what he was doing while he spent hours driving with the body of the girl in the country.

The Trend of the Times is toward CONSOLIDATION

BECAUSE economy has become a national watchword, and because low price to the consumer through lower operating costs has become a business watchword, and finally, because government has taken Roosevelt's advice, and now penalizes conduct—not size—it therefore becomes a logical step to merge business organizations for higher efficiency.

The Mercantile Trust Company is especially equipped to handle consolidations, mergers and refinancing, and has served nationally known concerns in many parts of the United States. Plans conceived—details arranged—projects completed. May we arrange an interview?

MRS. CLARK'S VERACITY QUESTIONED IN TRIAL

Women Seeking Estate Try to Disprove Story She Worked in Their Homes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BUTTE, Mont., July 15.—Mrs. William A. Clark, who took the stand for the defense in the suit through which three Missouri women are contesting the will of former Senator William A. Clark and testified that her husband and not Senator Clark was the father of the three plaintiffs, is not the person the representatives herself, two of the plaintiffs and others from Missouri testified yesterday.

Mrs. Clark, who, with her husband, lived for 46 years in Montana, had testified that she was the former Annie Pierce of Stewartsville, a maid in the home of William A. Clark, and that Clark abandoned the three plaintiffs and their mother in 1879, and how she followed him to Montana and married him the next year.

Mrs. Addie Clark Miller and Mrs. Effie Clark McWilliams, plaintiffs, testified yesterday they had faint remembrance of the Annie Pierce who worked in the home and both said she was of different appearance from Mrs. Clark. Both witnesses were shown several pictures of the man which have been identified by defense witnesses as likenesses of their father. They testified that the pictures did not represent their missing parent.

On cross-examination Sidney Sanner of defense counsel pointed out to the witnesses that they had taken the stand and identified a tintype as a picture of their father, at the same time explaining that they could not remember him but knew the picture had been in their grandfather's album and always had been pointed out as a picture of their father. The witnesses answered that they were certain of their testimony despite the fact that they were so young 50 years ago that their memory of early childhood was hazy.

Richard Hall, who had previously testified that he met Senator Clark during the Kansas City Democratic convention of 1900, also took the stand and said that pictures identified as likenesses of the missing Stewartsville druggist were not pictures of the late Senator.

PAY WARRANTS OF 20 COUNTY DEPUTY SHERIFFS HELD UP

Presiding Judge Smiley Refuses to Sign Them, for Two Reasons

Presiding Judge Smiley of the St. Louis County Court, or administrative body, announced yesterday that he would no longer affix his necessary signature to warrants for the pay of 20 Deputy Sheriffs of the county, who have been receiving a total of $2945 a month, at the rate of $100 to $150 each. He gave two reasons for his decision, which is likely to be contested in Circuit Court by the deputies.

Attorney-General Gentry ruled last month for Jefferson County officials that no County Court may appoint or pay officers to patrol State highways within its county, to search for prohibition violators or enforce traffic laws, but the Sheriff must see to enforcement of these laws. Judge Smiley said this opinion was one of the reasons for withholding pay of the deputies, who, however, are chosen by the Sheriff and approved by Circuit Court.

His other reason was that he believes the law providing for Deputy Sheriffs in St. Louis County might be unconstitutional, because its title is worded somewhat like that of the St. Louis County sewer law, which recently was held unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court.

Sheriff Wilmas said he did not intend to pay his deputies, but would discuss the matter with his attorneys. The deputies serve subpoenas and patrol some of the county roads. The Sheriff is a Republican. Smiley, a Democrat, is seeking renomination and his two Republican colleagues in the County Court, Judges Presley and Bobring, are seeking the nomination of their party for Smiley's office.

CHARGES DIAMOND MINES' ROBBERY BY ORGANIZED GANG

President of Jagersfontein Concern Says Natives Conceal Gems in Flesh Wounds.

By the Associated Press.
KIMBERLEY, July 15.—South African diamond mining companies lose thousands of pounds every year owing to illicit traffic in precious stones through a European organization, it is charged by Sir David Harris, president of the New Jagersfontein Mining Co.

The traffic is scientifically organized and controlled by a gang of international criminals, he charges. "Many millions of dollars have been lost in this way," he says.

Experts assert that, despite stern penalties imposed on workmen discovered in possession of diamonds on the fields, many of them participate in the traffic. Such bribes are offered by the international gang, it is claimed, that the men will take almost any risk. Natives have been known to cut a hole in their flesh and conceal a diamond in the wound.

FOR Stomach Acid PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

BETTER THAN SODA
For fifty years genuine "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

TRY A 25c BOTTLE
Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drug store.

JUDGE ENGLISH'S COURT WAS EASY ON BOOTLEGGERS

Some Striking Instances of Leniency in Liquor Cases Cited in Report of Federal Examiners.

STEPS TO REMEDY CONDITIONS TAKEN

Examination of Records in East St. Louis Not Expected to Be Completed for Two Months.

Some striking instances of leniency to bootleggers, who pleaded guilty or were convicted in Federal Court at East St. Louis in the last five years, as shown in the report of two Department of Justice examiners, were made public today by United States District Attorney Harold E. Baker, to whom the examiners have submitted a partial report showing apparent leniency on the part of officials in making the Court's sentences effective.

As told exclusively in yesterday's Post-Dispatch, the report, made after a three months' examination of an extraordinary condition existing in the offices of the District Attorney, United States Marshal and District Clerk, was submitted to Baker for investigation of the 417 cases listed with a view to taking proper legal action to enforce the court's order in each. The examination is not expected to be completed for two months.

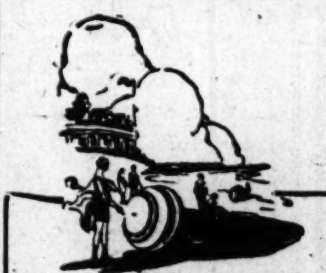

Federal Judge George Washington English was Presiding Judge of the court until the House of Representatives voted to impeach him last spring. He will be tried before the Senate Nov. 10. Since he ceased holding court, Federal Judge Walter Lindley of Danville, Associate Judge of the district, has presided in all cases.

Steps to remedy the conditions already have been taken in several instances. Judge Lindley has sentenced an interstate freight thief, against whom sentence was suspended by Judge English eight months ago when the defendant represented he was ill after pleading guilty, to four years in the penitentiary and fined him $1000, and in another case he ordered a bootlegger, against whom sentence had been suspended by Judge English on May 9, 1922, to begin serving a 60-day jail sentence. Both men are now serving their terms.

In the examiners' report it is stated that Judge Lindley has received a letter from a resident of Mounds, Ill., where the freight theft defendant, Ralph Lewis, resided, in which the writer stated that Lewis had boasted of having "fixed" his case. The other defendant ordered to jail by Judge Lindley is M. M. Bell of Belleville. In addition approximately $20,000 has been collected from persons mentioned in the examiners' report as having failed to satisfy judgments against them. The most notable instance was the collection of a $5000 fine for a liquor law violation from H. Albrecht & Co., a corporation formerly in the wholesale liquor business in East St. Louis, after a third execution had been levied against the corporation's property.

Responsibility Not Fixed. Responsibility for conditions prevailing in the court is not fixed by the examiners and District Attorney Baker, who recently succeeded W. O. Potter of Marion, declined to comment on where the responsibility rests. Potter, District Clerk Marshall E. Daniel, an appointee of Judge English, and United States Marshal James White yesterday asserted that their respective offices had been properly conducted.

Besides the cases already mentioned some typical instances of privileges enjoyed by bootleggers listed in the report follow: After obtaining a 60-day extension of the payment of a $200 fine, a Benton attorney telegraphed District Attorney Potter last July, when the stay had expired, asking another similar extension for a client, the report says. Since that time, the report says, a capias has been issued against the defendant.

to collect the fine, but it has not been returned and is not in the files. Investigating further the examiners relate, that they found six other cases in which the same attorney had obtained freedom for his clients by assuming responsibility for payment of their fines. The fines, however, have not been paid, the report states.

A farmer residing near East St. Louis served 10 days of a six-months' jail sentence on a liquor charge in May, 1922, and was then released under a suspended sentence for six months, the report states. It relates that a copy of the suspension order is still in the hands of the United States Marshal's office, no subsequent commitment or capias having been issued.

A bootlegger pleaded guilty Nov. 1922.

WILL OF LOUIS SHERRYObjects to Probate on Ground That Restaurant Owner Gave Too Much to Hospital.By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, July 15.—Because Louis Sherry, dean of New York restaurantiers was more than usually charitable, his will is being contested.The fight began yesterday in Surrogate's Court when Mrs. Dorothy Ingersoll, a granddaughter living in New York, filed objections to the probate of the will.
Mr. Sherry died June 9.The protest, which the court was told would be joined in by another granddaughter, Elsie Rosalie Post of Stamford, Conn., admits that the complaint of over-generosity is an unusual one to make on behalf of a contestant. But it is pointed out that the law provides that no person who has husband, wife or child shall bequeath more than half his estate to any charitable institution.Sherry, the complaint alleges, did this, naming the Presbyterian Hospital as beneficiary of his residuary estate. However, the law also provides that the bequest in such a case shall be invalidated only to the extent of one-half of the total estate.Sherry had inserted a clause in his will providing that any beneficiary who contested it should lose his interest, but this does not apply to the granddaughters, who were not mentioned in the instrument.
Mrs. Ingersoll is the child of Sherry's deceased daughter.The objection does not stop at the complaint that more than half the estate was left to charity. It is declared that Sherry, when he drew up the will last November and when he added a codicil in December, "was not of sound mind or memory and competent and capable of making a will."It is declared the document is not the last will and that his signature "was obtained by undue influence practiced upon the decendent in the interest of the principal legatee by some person or persons unknown to the contestant."Sherry was 71 years old when he died. He left a number of specific bequests and created a trust fund for his wife, Mrs. Bertha Sherry, which was to yield her $6000 a year. If the income from the estate were not sufficient, enough was to be taken from the capital to make up the difference as long as Mrs. Sherry lives.JUDGE ENGLISH'S COURT WAS EASY
ON BOOTLEGGERS

5, 1923 and was fined $500. The report sets forth that a 60-day stay of execution was granted, after which no commitment was issued. A capias for the defendant was issued Jan. 16, 1924, and returned a month later with the notation "Not found." The capias mentions, according to the report, that the defendant was released on his own recognizance, but records show an order was entered fixing his bond at $2000. However, the report points out, apparently no bond was given as there is no record of it.A case of failure to issue a commitment, capias or execution against a bootlegger who had been fined $300 and sentenced to four months in jail is also contained in the report. No action has been taken to collect the fine on a $3000 appeal bond of the defendant, the report states.Granting of a one-year stay of execution from payment of a fine assessed against a prohibition law violation in November, 1924, and failure to issue a commitment or capias at the expiration of the stay is related in another case in which the defendant was under bond.Other Fines and Costs Unpaid.
In another case a defendant pleaded guilty and was fined $200.
He was unable to pay the fine and an order committing him to jail was issued. However, he was then given a stay of execution for one year. The fine remains unpaid and no writ has been issued for the accused, the report asserts, although the one-year stay has long since expired.An appeal from a $500 fine was taken by another defendant. Costs of $1110 accrued. The defendant lost on appeal, but the report states there is no satisfaction of the judgment or costs.Distributed throughout the report are five cases against persons charged with liquor law violations in which the charges were dismissed. The District Attorney's docket showing as the reason "witnesses cannot be found." In each of these cases the witnesses listed by the chief prohibition enforcement officer were dry agents.

Doña Castile

the matchless toilet soap of Spain exquisitely refined for American womenIn Castilla, six hundred years ago, they first made the most perfect toilet soap that women have ever known —Castile! The beauty, the aristocracy of Spain used it then as they do today. Then, as today, Spain was known as the land of fine women and the most ravishing complexions in Europe.And they keep the bloom of those marvellous skins so long, and so easily! They know nothing of the arts of the toilette, as a French woman does, or a sophisticated American woman. But—more important than all else—ancestral wisdom teaches them to use a soap of perfect blandness—their incomparable jabon duro —Castile!Yet, we confess, we have painted the lily—we have made Doña Castile an even lovelier toilet soap than the most precious product of Castilla. How?—well, we have made it in a charming shape for your hand. We have given it a more profuse, a daintier lather. That you may have instantly, even in lukewarm water. That will also rinse instantly. Important for delicate skins! And then—being a "hard-milled" soap—Doña Castile is very very lasting, and will not readily deliquesce—a new virtue in Castile! The little things that make perfection—the little things too that fastidious women value.Yes; when you use it you will say of this exquisite Castile—"the finest toilet soap in the world!" A Castile supremely soothing to your skin, exquisitely cleansing too—a delicious Castile! You can buy it

EMILY POST

IN HER BOOK "ETIQUETTE," which is the unquestioned authority on correct table appointments and usage, Mrs. Post says:

"A water glass standing alone at each place makes a meager and untrimmed-looking table." As a beverage Mrs. Post suggests ginger ale either alone or combined with other beverages or fruit juices.

When asked which ginger ale she considered best, Mrs. Post unhesitatingly said Clicquot Club Pale Dry. She said:

"I think Clicquot Club Pale Dry is much the nicest ginger ale I have ever tasted. It is attractive in color, tempting, sparkling, and delicious in flavor. In fact, it seems to complete the hospitable effect of a perfectly appointed table."

Two flavors to choose from

A drink of most delicate flavor when taken alone, the Pale Dry Clicquot also blends its subtle personality perfectly with other drinks. The Golden Clicquot is of more pronounced flavor, the famous drink that has made ginger ale America's most popular beverage. The Clicquot Club Company, Millis, Massachusetts.

ANDREW PECHAN ACCUSED OF FRAUD IN DEED SALE

Woman Stands to Lose Several Thousand Dollars of Savings as Result of This and Another Deal.

GOT SECOND INSTEAD OF FIRST MORTGAGE

In the Second Transaction She Has Nothing to Show for $5500 but His Receipt.

The indictment of Andrew Pechan, bookkeeper for his brother, Thomas F. Pechan, missing South Side real estate dealer, on a charge of fraudulently selling a second deed of trust for $5500 as a first deed, is based on a transaction with Mrs. Eva Brueckl, wife of Joseph Brueckl, retired saloonkeeper, of 713 Fillmore street, who stands to lose several thousand dollars of savings as a result of this and another deal.

Mrs. Brueckl, an elderly woman, with married children, went to the Pechan offices at Twelfth and Russell boulevards last Dec. 5 and gave Andrew Pechan $5500 for a deed of trust on a flat at 2905 Wyoming street, valued at $9000. Mrs. Brueckl says Pechan assured her she was buying a first deed, but never delivered a certificate of title, asserting the title examiners were delayed.

After publication of Thomas F. Pechan's disappearance three months ago, Mrs. Brueckl investigated and found that a prior deed on the flat was owned by John Klasek of 2717 Virginia avenue. To protect her investment, she bought Klasek's deed for $2800, and later spent another $3600 to buy the flat at foreclosure sale. Thus she has spent a total of $11,900 on a flat valued at $9000.

In a second deal, Mrs. Brueckl has nothing but Andrew Pechan's receipt to show for $5500, part of which belonged to her and part to her daughter, Mrs. Anna Witthopp, wife of a grocer at Itasca street and Louisiana avenue. The receipt, dated Nov. 23, 1925, states the money was to be applied on a first deed of trust loan on property at 3501-03 Indiana avenue.

Andrew Pechan, according to Mrs. Brueckl, told her the property belonged to an estate and he could not deliver the deed until a minor heir became of age on Christmas. Christmas came and passed without the deed being delivered, and other excuses were offered. Mrs. Brueckl says. Finally she consulted her attorneys, A. G. Hageter and S. E. Eaken, and they took her to the Circuit Attorney's office.

Her testimony before the grand jury resulted in Andrew Pechan's indictment.

Penalty in Case of Conviction. The offense charged is punishable upon conviction by imprisonment for six months to five years, a fine of not less than $100, or both fine and imprisonment.

Andrew Pechan is out on bond. A capias has been issued for the arrest of his missing brother, who is charged in indictments with embezzlement by bail, forgery and grand larceny. As is known, irregularities discovered have caused the fear that his clients may lose as much as $250,000.

YOUTH HELD ON THEFT CHARGE AGAIN TRIES TO END HIS LIFE

Earl Cavanaugh, 17 years old, who has been confined to the House of Detention since he confessed to stealing automobile accessories from his mother, Mrs. Lulu Cavanaugh, of 6924 Magnolia avenue, attempted to commit suicide last night for the second time, by eating glass.

He is at City Hospital, where physicians extracted some particles of glass from his stomach. His condition at present is not serious, although complications may develop. On June 16, after being arrested for the theft, he drank the contents of an inkwell and was taken to City Hospital, escaping a few days later. He was recaptured Tuesday.

Drinks Coffee From Poisoned Cup. Joseph Sclaceta, 34 years old, of 1637 Hogan street, was taken to City Hospital yesterday for treatment for mercury poisoning after he had drank coffee poured in a cup in which his wife the day before had mixed a solution to apply to a wound. The cup had been set aside by the wife, she being asleep when Sclaceta came home from work and prepared lunch for himself.

Boy Escapes as House Blows Up. By the Associated Press

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., July 15.—Awakened by the hissing of the fuse of a bomb, 15-year-old Vincent Ferraro today jumped to safety through a window a few minutes before an explosion demolished the two-story frame dwelling. The boy's father, Patsey Ferraro, was in New York and the lad was alone. Fire completed the destruction of the house. A small building adjoining the house and used by Ferraro as a store also was destroyed.

Prevent HAY FEVER Now

"Now is the time to start your battle to prevent hay fever, rather than in August when the disease is under way," says a bulletin just issued by the publicity bureau of the Indiana State Medical Association.

This advice is particularly timely for those who will take advantage of the remedy which is based on Dr. W. J. Fugate's discovery of the basic cause of this distressing malady. Experience has proved that the big majority of those who secure permanent relief through the use of Dr. Fugate's Hay Fever and Asthma Remedy start using the medicine a week or ten days prior to the time when the disease usually attacks them.

Dr. Fugate discovered that no matter what the incidental cause of any case of Hay Fever or Asthma might be—whether dust, pollen, or other irritation, the basic cause lies within the individual himself. By preparing the system in advance of the cause of irritation, Dr. Fugate's Remedy has enabled hundreds to go through the hay fever season without a single symptom.

Hundreds of others who start the treatment after the season begins get immediate relief and many never have Hay Fever in following years. Dr. Fugate's Hay Fever and Asthma Remedy is sold under the positive guarantee to return your money if you do not get relief after using two bottles according to directions. In many cases a single bottle gives immunity.

Write for complete information concerning this marvelous remedy, as well as photographic reproductions of letters from people who have received permanent relief. Address: FUGATE REMEDY CO., Dept. M 124 South Meridian St., Indianapolis, Ind.

7.5 PCT. ALLOWED ON UTILITY VALUATION

Public Service Board Issues Order Affecting Jackson County Light Concern.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, July 15.—An indication of the policy to be followed by the State Public Service Commission in determining some of the factors entering into valuation of property of the Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis, is seen in an order issued yesterday fixing the valuation of the Jackson County Light, Heat and Power Co. of Independence, Mo., in which an allowance of 7.5 per cent was made for going value.

In the Laclede case now under submission to the commission for final decision, the company contended for a valuation of $14,795,000 based on reproduction new at present day prices, less depreciation. This figure included $12,137,219 for going value, or 16.2 per cent of the total valuation claimed by the company which included intangibles such as preconstruction costs, and costs of financing, developing business and training employees.

Reasonable Return Defined.
In determining public utility valuations the commission rarely has allowed in excess of 10 per cent for going value. It is recalled that in fixing a tentative valuation of $24,700,000 for the St. Louis exchange of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., the commission allowed $1,000,000 for going value or approximately four per cent. These past cases indicate a substantial reduction will be made by the commission from the company's going value claims, in fixing the final valuation.

In the Jackson County Light, Heat & Power Co. order the commission reiterated previous holdings that a reasonable rate of return is approximately seven per cent. The commission held that "a reasonable rate of return, at this time, lies within a minimum of seven per cent and a maximum of eight per cent."

Rates Held Adequate.
The commission held that gas rates now charged by the Jackson County company, which operates in Independence and nearby territory in Jackson County, were adequate to pay a reasonable return on the fair valuation fixed for the property.

Valuation of the property was fixed at $27,000 including 7.5 per cent for going value. The company, in hearings before the commission, had contended for a valuation of at least $710,000.

SWINGS BASEBALL BAT
AT RAIDING DRY AGENTS

Youth, However, Is Disarmed—Still and Whisky Then Found in Basement.

A youth with a baseball bat swung at prohibition agents when they entered the rear yard of Mrs. Annie Evansco's residence, at 373 Exchange avenue, East St. Louis, yesterday. The agents disarmed him and went into the basement, where they found a 50-gallon still and five gallons of whisky. Mrs. Evansco was arrested.

The saloon at 101 North Third street, East St. Louis, was raided and six gallons of whisky and two kegs of beer on tap were seized. Thomas McCarthy, in charge, was arrested. In a raid July 2 on the same place George Geddings, in charge, was arrested.

Attorney for Woman Real Estate Operator Who Died July 3 Opens Safe Deposit Box.

The safe deposit box of Miss Sidonia E. Lohr, real estate operator, who died July 3, was opened yesterday afternoon at the Mercantile Trust Co. by Burke Starke, her attorney. It disclosed a personal estate of $12,400, including certificates of deposit for $2,700, loans on real estate and other securities, and a checking account of $800.

The only papers found showing real estate ownership pertained to a family apartment on Clayton road, the value of which Starke has not ascertained. It was expected that she would be found to have possessed considerable real estate.

WOMAN HELD FOR BAD CHECKS

Mrs. Maud Joyner Says She Obtained Them From Other Persons.

Mrs. Maud Joyner, 38 years old, of 4065 West Pine boulevard, was arrested last night on complaint of Leonard F. Williams, attorney for Mrs. Julia Jacoby, milliner, at 1025 Locust street, who alleged Mrs. Joyner had cashed two worthless checks there for $125.

One check for $50 was drawn on the First National Bank of Chicago, made payable to Mrs. W. C. Joyner by J. C. Lowrey, and another for $75 was drawn on the First National Bank of Kansas City, made payable to Cash by J. C. Riley. Millinery worth $109.50 and the balance in money were given for the checks and they came back marked "No account," according to Williams. Mrs. Joyner was released on bond. She said she cashed the checks in good faith, having received them from other persons.

PROPOSED NEW CRIMINAL LAWS PREVENT HUNG JURIES, CHECK "THIRD DEGREE," DO AWAY WITH BAIL BOND ABUSES

Crime Commission Would Arraign Suspects Immediately on Arrest, Convict on Vote of Ten Jurors

Prosecution by Information Recommended by National Body's Law Committee to Do Away With Indictment Technicalities—Paroles Carefully Regulated, Public Defender for Poor—Judges Would Be Permitted to Comment on Trial Evidence.

THE National Crime Commission's plan for recasting state laws, designed to check prevalent crime and make varying codes as uniform as possible, was made public today, in connection with the meeting of the American Bar Association in Denver. It was prepared by a sub-committee headed by Herbert S. Hadley.

Called "An Outline of a Code of Criminal Procedure," the outstanding suggested reforms provide: Felony verdicts upon a five-sixths vote, thereby doing away with hung juries; immediate arraignment in court of arrested persons, to vitiate the police "third degree"; prosecution on information, or affidavit, as well as by indictment; regulation of bail bond and parole abuses; a public defender for prisoners without funds and liberalizing of the laws of evidence with a view to removing restrictions upon the courts.

Following is the report in full. The italicized matter in parentheses under each chapter heading is not a part of the outline, but was prepared by the committee for the information of the public.

I. EVERY person charged with a felony shall, without unnecessary delay after his arrest, be taken to a magistrate, or other judicial officer, and, after being informed as to his rights, shall be given an opportunity publicly to make any statement and may answer any questions regarding the charge.

(This would introduce in effect a practice which has prevailed in England since 1848 and now exists in New York. It would help to eliminate what is known as the "third degree," which prevails in some parts of the country. If the person charged with a felony is given a prompt and public opportunity before a magistrate to make his statement, the police will have no excuse for conducting secret, unregulated and oppressive examinations.)

II. PROSECUTION for crime may be either by indictment or information. It will be sufficient in either case to name or otherwise state the offense to be charged. The court, for good cause shown, shall require the filing of a bill of particulars. (Indictment is an accusation by a grand jury. Information is an accusation by the chief prosecuting official. The two remedies have always been concurrent in the case of misdemeanors. In many States the two remedies have been made concurrent in the case of felonies. This should be true in all States. The information makes it possible to institute a speedy prosecution. The absurdly technical language of traditional indictments should be made unnecessary. If the information or indictment is too general, then the Court should be permitted to require the accusation to be made more specific by a bill of particulars.)

III. IN EVERY case where one charged with crime is entitled to bail, the amount of the bond shall be fixed with consideration of the seriousness of the offense charged, the previous criminal record of the defendant, and the probability or improbability of his appearing at the trial of the case. Such bondman shall be examined under oath and shall be required to make full disclosure of his financial condition and submit a description of his property and the amount of his obligations, and also who, if anyone, has indemnified him and what, if any, collateral he has received and from whom. All statements made by him in such examination shall be deemed to be material allegations and if false statements are made he shall be sworn, and has never been convicted of a felony; but no verdict shall be set aside because a juror was not qualified to serve. The fact that the juror has read or heard of the case and has formed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused shall not disqualify such juror if, in the opinion of the trial judge he can render a fair and impartial verdict.

(Where needed, statutes should be adopted to insure intelligent jurors, and of course the ordinary citizen who reads newspapers should not be disqualified.)

VII. IN addition to the right to challenge any venireman for cause, both the State and defendant shall have the same number of peremptory challenges.

(This section is intended to remove an inequality of privilege that exists in many States.)

VIII. DEFENDANTS charged with conspiracy or any other crime, such as riot or affray, that requires joint action, shall be tried jointly and all defendants jointly indicted for crimes, that may be jointly committed but do not require joint action, shall be jointly tried unless in the opinion of the trial court the interests of justice require that one or more be tried separately.

(This purpose of this section, like many of the other sections, is to reduce the opportunities for unfair and special advantage on the part of those defendants who financially are able to employ shrewd and resourceful lawyers.)

IX. THE defendant shall be a competent witness in his own behalf, and if he testifies, shall be subject to cross-examination as any other witness. If he fails to testify as a witness, his failure to do so may be commented on by the Court and counsel in their statements to the jury.

(The prevailing American rule that a defendant's failure to testify is no evidence of guilt is contrary to the common sense and experience of mankind, and should be modified. It does not obtain in England, Canada, or any other country where the jury system prevails.)

X. THE defendant and the State shall be entitled to legal process to secure the attendance of witnesses and each may, if the presence of a witness cannot be secured, take the deposition of such witness whether within or without the State, under such conditions to be fixed by the Court as will protect the rights of the defendant. Both the State and the defendant may use the testimony of any competent witness who has testified at any hearing of said charge, proving said testimony was given in the presence of the defendant with an opportunity for him to cross-examine such witness. The Court may also, under such conditions as will protect the rights of the defendant, permit the State or the defendant to take the deposition of a witness within its jurisdiction, showing that said witness is likely to leave said jurisdiction before the trial of said case.

(A deposition is the written testimony of a witness to be used in a later trial. Depositions are generally authorized in lawsuits between private citizens. In all States they should be permitted also in criminal cases, under proper safeguards.)

XI. THE defendant shall be presumed to be innocent of the offense charged, but the effect of this presumption shall be only to place upon the State the burden of proving him guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, and the Court shall so instruct the jury.

(This section is directed against the overemphasis that has been placed on the presumption of innocence by the decisions of a number of States.)

XII. IN the conduct of the trial, including the examination of witnesses, the Judge shall have the same powers as at common law.

90 Per Cent of Criminals Escape Arrest, Three-Fourths of Remainder Avoid Prison

IN presenting the outline of a code of criminal procedure prepared by the Committee on Criminal Procedure and Judicial Administration of the National Crime Commission, it will be of interest to know the method by which this outline was considered and agreed upon.

The work was begun on Jan. 19, 1926, by the submission to each member of the committee of a tentative draft of proposed changes in the criminal procedure generally, prevailing in this country with a request for comments, criticisms and additional suggestions. The replies received from 13 members of the committee, with answers thereto, were sent to all the other members of the committee for their consideration and comment.

This discussion by correspondence continued till April 26, when a meeting of the committee was held at Washington, D. C., which was attended by Judges Hallam and Kavanaugh, Prof. Keedy, Gen. Allen, District Attorney Banton, Col. Van Cise, myself, and Prof. Tyrrell Williams of Washington University Law School, St. Louis, as executive secretary. After a two-day discussion of the proposed provisions and the various criticisms and comments, an agreement was reached on an outline of a code of procedure containing 20 sections. As the definite expression of some of the provisions agreed on could not be completed during this meeting, they were referred to subcommittees for preparation.

Much thoughtful preparation. A subcommittee consisting of Gen. Allen, Prof. Keedy, District Attorney Banton and Prof. Williams was appointed to prepare the provisions relating to the trial of the defendant, and the subcommittee met in New York City for that purpose on June 17 and 18. In this way the outline, now made public, was prepared. I do not believe there is too much to be said of the proposals for the improvement of our criminal procedure have received such careful and thoughtful consideration by so many men experienced and informed upon this subject.

In making these proposals, which are intended to state legal propositions which can be embodied in statutes or constitutional amendments, we have had in mind the necessity and advisability of being practical. We have sought to accomplish the largest possible measure of correction of the faults of existing codes of criminal procedure that can reasonably be expected considering the present attitude of the public toward such questions. The traditional ideas of the American people as to the administration of justice make it necessary that we should move slowly in initiating changes.

Theories of the Code. There are two theories upon which codes of criminal procedure are founded. First, there is the theory that a code of criminal procedure should be framed primarily for the protection of the citizen against possible injustice and oppression by the State. Second, there is the theory that a code of criminal procedure should provide for such a judicial investigation of a charge of crime as will lead to a prompt and definite decision as to guilt and punishment.

I believe it can be fairly stated that the code of criminal procedure that now obtains in practically all our states belongs to the first class, although present conditions seem to demand that the second theory is the one that should obtain, if society is effectively to protect itself against its enemies. In these suggestions we have sought to protect effectively the rights of the citizen, to safeguard the innocent against conviction and also remove from existing

The accompanying explanation of the National Crime Commission's outline of a code of universal procedure was prepared by Herbert S. Hadley, formerly Governor of Missouri, now Chancellor of Washington University, who is chairman of the commission's sub-committee on criminal procedure and judicial administration.

We do not of course claim to have provided a system which will fully accomplish all the desired results. But that the one proposed will work better than the codes now generally in effect in the different states we confidently assert. For under its provisions the trial of a criminal case will become less of a game of contest of skill, cunning and endurance between opposing lawyers, and will become more of a judicial investigation under the trained and impartial direction of the Judge to ascertain the truth.

Not All New Laws. We have not proceeded on the theory that no innocent persons are ever prosecuted or convicted, nor do we for a moment contend that in the prosecution of those manifestly guilty there should be any disregard of established safeguards and recognized privileges. There will probably be no state in which the adoption of all these proposals will be necessary, as there is probably no proposal made that has not in substance at least been adopted in some state. In a number of states a majority of these proposals are now the law.

But it is interesting to note that two of the most important changes recommended, viz., the right of the Judge to comment on the evidence, as at common law, and the right to comment on defendant's failure to testify, are now the law in a very limited number of states. The first of those provisions obtains in only eight states and the latter in only two and to a limited extent in only three others. It also is of interest to note that there were no proposals that were more fully and completely agreed to by all the members of the committee than these two, which have also received the approval of practically all who from the standpoint of experience and study have considered the reform of our criminal procedure.

Either of these changes could be accomplished in most states simply by an act of the state legislature. These provisions are found in the criminal procedure of the people of Canada and England, from which latter country we inherited our system of jurisprudence and procedure. They also obtain in the procedure of every other civilized nation in which trial by jury is provided for.

Judged from a practical or theoretical standpoint it is difficult to understand why there should not be provided for every trial, a disinterested expert authority to advise and assist the jury in dealing with the facts as well as the law. In the absence of such an authority the jurors look to the lawyers for advice and direction and the result is that a trial becomes a contest between opposing counsel, in which the ablest lawyer usually wins.

To state the reasons why the Judge has been eliminated as a directing influence in the trial of a criminal case in all but eight of the American states would involve a discussion and explanation of conditions which have long since ceased to exist. And the reason why the right of the trial Judge to direct the trial has not been restored is to be found in the practical operation of our state legislatures, which, in so far as such legislation is concerned, have been generally controlled by lawyers, who have been disposed to look at such questions from the standpoint of defendant's counsel.

Some Lawyers Opposed. Naturally these men have been more in favor of the maintenance of existing procedure, under which they can practice effectively, than they have been in securing a system that will result in the prompt and certain conviction of the guilty. If the public want a better system they must secure it through their own initiative and the dominating influence of public opinion. This was the experience of the people of England, who, after over half a century of discussion, accomplished some 75 years ago the establishment of an effective system of criminal procedure against the opposition of many of the leaders in the legal profession, including many Judges. Aside from the selfish interests involved, it is generally difficult for those responsible for a system to realize its defects and accomplish its correction.

By these statements I do not mean to assert that there are not many high-minded, able men in the legal profession and on the bench who have actively and effectively interested themselves in the reform of our procedural and substantive law. But records of the American Bar Association and of the state bar associations, of the American Law Institute and of this organization, would overwhelmingly disprove such a charge. But those who have taken the lead in such associations in advocating reforms are as a general rule not the lawyers who defend criminal cases or the lawyers who serve in state legislatures. The experience and self-interests of the latter cause them naturally to array themselves in support of the established order for the maintenance of what they are pleased to designate as the ancient bulwarks and safeguards of liberty and innocence.

A Synthetic Arrangement. As further evidence of the practical phase of this situation only one additional comment may be made. In every American state when a sincere effort is made to remedy an existing evil by statute or constitutional amendment, guidance is sought through an examination of the statutes and constitutions of other states. What we offer is a synthetic arrangement of approved practices in criminal procedure, each one of which actually has been tested by human experience either in this country or in England. It is reasonable to anticipate that this outline will be recognized by broad-minded legislators in any particular state as a convenient means for enabling them to be guided by the experience of others.

Many causes have contributed to the result that 90 per cent of those guilty of committing major crimes in this country are not apprehended and punished. Many causes contribute to the result that approximately 75 per cent of those apprehended and prosecuted for major crimes escape the minimum punishment provided by law. That the archaic, cumbersome and ineffective system of criminal procedure that now obtains in a majority of our states is one of the causes that has largely contributed to this result, is the conclusion of all who have given the subject a thoughtful consideration, and this is the reason why the members of this committee have, as a matter of public service, undertaken this investigation and report.

Witness as, in his opinion, the interests of justice may require—provided, however, that the failure of the Court to instruct on any point of law shall not be ground for setting aside a verdict of the jury unless such instruction is requested by the defendant. Such instructions and comments by the trial court shall be reduced to writing.

before delivery, unless a stenographic record is made at the time of delivery.

(During the early days of our country's history in many States laws were passed and constitutional amendments were adopted which had the effect of reducing the power of the judge to that of a mere umpire unconcerned in the actual discovery of criminal guilt or innocence. In a few States, and in the Federal courts, the power of the judges remained as it originally existed according to the common law of England. The purposes of the section is to restore this judicial power in those States where it was unjustly taken away to the unfair advantage of criminals financially able to employ eloquent and resourceful lawyers.)

XIII.

N all felony cases a five-sixths verdict of a jury shall be sufficient to convict, except in cases where death may be the penalty imposed, and in which cases the verdict of the jury must be unanimous. In misdemeanor cases triable before a jury, the jury shall consist of six, and a five-sixths verdict shall be sufficient to convict. The defendant, in any case except where the death penalty may be imposed, may waive a trial by jury and have the case tried by the Court. In all jury trials, only the question of guilt shall be decided by the jury, and the trial Judge shall fix such punishment as may be authorized by law. Before sentence, the Judge shall be advised of the defendant's criminal record so far as obtainable, and may seek information as to his mental condition.

(In many States a verdict by fewer than all of a jury is permitted in civil suits, and in several States in criminal trials. Experience proves the wisdom of such provisions. The same system should be applied in criminal cases in all States. In misdemeanor cases, it is believed that speedy and impartial justice can be obtained by a jury of six. If a defendant is willing to waive a jury and submit his case to the judge, the statutes of all States should be elastic enough to permit this to be done.)

XIV.

A DEFENDANT shall have the right to appeal an appellate court following a verdict and judgment of guilt. The Appellate Court shall, on appeal, in addition to the issues raised by the defendant, consider and pass upon all rulings of the trial court adverse to the defendant which it may be requested to pass upon by the prosecuting officer of the county or the Attorney-General of the State. The State may also prosecute an appeal by the prosecuting officer or by the Attorney-General of the State, and also advise and urge a reversal of the trial court's decision of the trial court, except a verdict and judgment of not guilty. On the hearing of an appeal a judgment of conviction shall not be reversed on the ground of misdirection of the jury or rejection of evidence, or for error as to any matter of pleading or procedure, unless in the opinion of the Appellate Court, after an examination of the record before the court it shall appear that the error complained of has resulted in a miscarriage of justice.

(According to the Supreme Court of the United States, "law is a statement of the circumstances in which the public force will be brought to bear upon men through the courts." (213 U. S. 358.) This typically modern and American definition emphasizes the importance of courts, and especially appellate courts, in preserving and effectuating what we call law. To a limited extent there should be a right to appeal in criminal cases even when the defendant wins in the lower court.

The last part of this section is directed against the doctrine that all error in criminal cases is presumed to be prejudicial error. Many thoughtful lawyers think that this doctrine, which is peculiarly American, is the most disastrous doctrine that has developed in the criminal jurisprudence of America. It has resulted in the reversal on an average of one-third of all criminal convictions, taking the country as a whole.

XV.

ALL appeals shall be taken within—days after the judgment of the court. The record of the appeal shall be perfected and filed in the Appellate Court within—days after the appeal is taken and shall be given precedence over civil appeals.

The Appellate Court may call witnesses or receive affidavits in reference to any controverted question of fact relating to the procedure in the trial, or may call upon the trial court to examine in and correct a statement in reference to such matter of procedure. In all appeals, typewritten transcripts of the record and typewritten briefs may be used by permission of the Appellate Court. In case the Appellate Court considers the punishment fixed is excessive, it may reduce the same without remanding the case for new trial.

In all capital cases, the record must be reviewed by the highest court of appeal. If the defendant be found indigent by the trial court, the expense of the appeal, together with a reasonable attorney fee to be fixed by the court, shall be paid by the county in which the crime was committed.

(The purpose of this section is to prevent avoidable delay in connection with appeals, without prejudicing the rights of defendants.)

XVI.

IF on an appeal by the defendant the judgment of conviction shall be reversed and remanded the case shall be promptly set for re-trial.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

What St. Louis Needs.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
WHAT the majority of the St. Louis public really wants is more steady jobs and good steady business and good collections, then the little drink problem will take care of itself of its own accord.

A few days of the National Grotto Convention has shown St. Louis what a floating population means to St. Louis. Now that it is over, people are looking for jobs by the hundreds again and the same old amount of bad collections. The old rut is again visible with the same old day dreams of the same old thing over again day after day.

We have in St. Louis the greatest Municipal Open Air Theater. Why can't St. Louis have other great things? Such as the greatest swimming pool, the greatest open air dancing place, the greatest band and travel from town to town advertising St. Louis, also a great race track. Racing exists in other states coaxing people from St. Louis to spend their money and their morals in those states stand with St. Louis in the acid test.

St. Louis needs attractions that will give people in other towns good reasons to come and spend a few days and dollars in St. Louis, instead of just going right by.

Add Another Disaster.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
IN TODAY'S news section you refer to "four big disasters to United States Navy within the last five years." But what about the "flareback" on the U. S. S. Mississippi in which 48 lost their lives on June 12, 1924? Was not that a disaster worthy of note?

It was on the ship at that time, also, a lesser like disaster on another U. S. ship (the Trenton, I believe) at a later date. About 30 killed. RALPH JOHNSON.

Why Not Wait?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
SUBJECT: One bus will not wait for another when only one or two hundred feet away. This is especially true on Union and Pershing. Every morning, about 6:55 a. m. to 7:06 a. m.

Strange nobody will take any action on above.

Your column has always been successful in getting results in the past; maybe we will be lucky again.

ONE WHO IS FAIR.

Where Are the Rain Checks?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I'M SURE thousands of St. Louisans will agree with me that the Municipal Theater management is not playing fair, rather taking advantage of a good-natured public. Several times this season a performance has been continued, in spite of a downpour of rain, in order that rain checks should not be issued. Do you think this is business and the part of the management? The people have no recourse and must abide by the decision of the management. I think it time a protest was heard in order that the Municipal Theater directors may know that this method does not agree with the approval of the people.

OTIS T. MANN.

DISAPPOINTED ST. LOUISANS.

Thinks Mayor's Golf Stand Correct.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
HAVING noted your editorial in Saturday evening's paper under the heading of "Mayor Miller's Blah," in which you gave him the "rasberry" for saying that the entire population should not be taxed for 1 per cent of them playing golf in Forest Park.

I am not a Miller man, in fact, I at one time favored his recall, but this is one time that I felt that the champion bungler is in the right. If the city of St. Louis has any surplus money there are plenty of good, useful purposes for which it may be appropriated.

Anyone who has the time and money to afford the game of golf should join a private golf club, as there are plenty of them, also tennis courts, or either get together and build one to suit themselves. But I will say that they have no right to compel me to spend my good hard-earned money so that they can play the aristocratic game of golf, while I am working like a horse to earn it.

I do not object to putting out my money for necessary recreations, such as playgrounds for the children, and a few public comfort stations that are badly needed in the downtown districts, also in the middle part of the city, such as Grand and Olive.

The State has no right to tax the people for the luxuries of another, however, if the city can maintain these, golf and tennis courts, and run them at a profit, so as to help support the rest of the park, then it should do so. But it should charge a sufficient sum to insure its expense and any additional employees.

BEVERLY BUNCOMBE.

THE MAYOR'S BRIDGE PLAN.

In the matter of putting the Municipal Bridge to work Mayor Miller has taken the bull by the horns. He proposes direct action. He has the distinction and the credit as Mayor of offering the first practical plan, including the necessary legislation by the city, to enable the St. Louis railroads to use the Municipal Bridge.

The Mayor today submits his program of action, which, if adopted by the Board of Aldermen, will open the bridge on fair and equal terms to every railroad and terminal company in the St. Louis industrial district. The program outlined by the Mayor will be submitted to the Board of Aldermen at a special session, which has been called for next Tuesday.

The plan offered by the Mayor embraces several steps:

1. The repeal of the foolish ordinance No. 29,501, which attempts, contrary to law, to fix the rates on the bridge, and the adoption of an ordinance providing for the use of the bridge by any railroad on a user basis; that is, every railroad using the bridge under a permit shall pay the proportionate cost of maintenance. Until the revenue from the use of the bridge is sufficient to defray overhead and operating expenses each railroad will pay a schedule charge for locomotives, passenger and freight cars.

2. The laying of tracks on Gratiot street from the tracks on the Municipal Bridge at Eighth street to the tracks of the Missouri Pacific Railroad at Fourteenth street. The Gratiot street tracks will connect the Alton & Southern terminals on the East side, which have connections with nearly every railroad entering St. Louis from the East, with the Missouri Pacific, and through the Missouri Pacific tracks with the Frisco, Wabash and Rock Island. If the Alton & Southern cannot own the tracks on this side, it proposes to build them, turn them over to the city and obtain repayment of the cost through rental allowances.

3. The Mayor will ask the Board of Public Service to grant permits or the Board of Aldermen to pass ordinances necessary to provide these track connections.

4. The Board of Public Service is to make the necessary survey and take the necessary steps for the construction of the southern approach to connect the bridge with the Manufacturers' Railroad, which has promised to use the bridge in the event this connection is made. The money has been provided for the construction of the southern approach by a vote of the people, which the Mayor properly regards as a mandate. The Mayor submits a substitute ordinance for No. 29,501, creating a Bridge Commission to operate and maintain the bridge and to fix charges and regulations for its use.

In submitting his program the Mayor does not set aside the plan for the exchange of bridges between the city and the St. Louis Terminal Railroad Association. He justifies his own plan to put the bridge to work at once by citing the bridge exchange ordinance, which specifically reserves to the city of St. Louis the right to permit railroads other than the association's railroads to use the Municipal Bridge upon terms of exact equality with it. The bridge will be open to the use of the Terminal Association upon the terms offered other railroads. The Terminal Association, however, will not control all the traffic over the bridge and will not be able to levy its service charge on other railroads and terminals, regardless of the service it renders. The Mayor submits in his statement a letter from President Fox of the Alton & Southern pledging his railroad to use the bridge on a user basis when the Gratiot street tracks are constructed. The Mayor submits letters written by himself to President Baldwin of the Missouri Pacific and President Markham of the Illinois Central asking their co-operation in putting the Municipal Bridge to work.

The Mayor's proposal is in complete accord with the policy upon which the Municipal Bridge was built, and is based, we believe, upon sound judgment and sound policy. It proposes to open and expand, not to restrict, the St. Louis railroad gateway. Co-operation between the Mayor, the Board of Aldermen and the Board of Public Service on this program will solve the bridge problem in the right way.

POOR AIRPLANE FACILITIES.

Poor airplane facilities in this country caused the round-the-world travelers to lose nearly a day's time in their hectic 28-day trip. One of them said: "We had more trouble with airplanes in this country than we had any place in Europe." It is a lamentable fact that the country where the airplane was invented and where its development should be greatest is being outstripped by other countries who are quicker to realize its possibilities.

THIS MAN AVERY.

And they call this man Avery a bookkeeper! Avery maintained two homes, two wives, two children and two automobiles on a salary of $175 a month. One of his homes he paid for, he was paying for the other. Both homes were well furnished, his wives were modishly clothed and resigned to, if not contented with, their lot. Avery spent the evenings and night at one house, and ate breakfast and dinner at the other. In appearance, he was far from sheik-like. He was plous-faced and careless in his dress. He resorted to none of the deceptive tactics usually employed by dual livers. His name was correctly listed twice in the telephone book, and once each in the city and county directories. This thing has been going on for many months. Avery a bookkeeper! Why, Avery is nothing less than a miracle worker.

THE CAMPAIGN ISSUES.

"Settlement of the war debts and reduction of taxes are accomplishments of Congress which President Coolidge, as leader of his party in the congressional campaign, seeks to have emphasized and presented to the people as issues."

Thus a correspondent writing from the President's camp in the Adirondacks after a talk with the presidential "spokesman."

It must be the altitude. How else can one account for the announcement, presumably from the omniscient and ubiquitous "spokesman," that the war-debt settlements and the revenue bill of 1926 constitute the major issues of the campaign?

Has the President's alter ego so soon forgotten that these achievements—these debt settlements that financiers generally believe to be unworkable and this tax bill, with its bulging benefits for the income brackets of $100,000 and above—were advertised and glorified to the country as the patriotic work of Republicans and Democrats in combination? These are not party issues. Any attempt by the President to use them as a smoke screen to hide the real issues of the congressional campaign is certain to meet with defeat.

It is respectfully suggested that the "spokesman," at his next interview with the correspondents, give his views on farm relief, the tariff, the Mellon-Grundy spending debacle in the last Pennsylvania primary and the "packing" of independent agencies of Government with presidential yes-men. With those topics, he can keep off prohibition, the World Court and the catching of the six-pound pike, and still have a mouthful to talk about.

GOOD LUCK, BOBBY!

Having beaten the world and won everything there is to win, Bobby Jones now thinks of taking golf up seriously!

"I am not sure that the left hand is the master of the swing," says Bobby. "It is a point I am just learning. The right provides the punch, or most of it, but if I get to thinking about the right hand and ignore the left the right seems to get in too soon and cause trouble. I am going to study this seriously and try to improve my game, which certainly has not been consistent this year."

People thought Bobby, after so many consecutive triumphs, would, like Alexander, weep for more worlds to conquer. He has found another world in golf itself. We hope he conquers that, too. He is a very deserving young man, and his golf career shows he has great aptitude for it. Here's hoping he learns to play it.

MR. CUMMINS WILL WRITE A BOOK.

Senator Albert B. Cummins will not be a lame duck when his present term ends, neither will he practice law in Washington or New York. He will return to Iowa, where he plans to write the memoirs of his senatorial experience, which began in the stormy twilight of the Roosevelt regime and continued with increasing prestige through the Taft, Wilson, Harding and Coolidge administrations.

This is a work which Mr. Cummins, in the judgment of Washington, is well equipped to do, though whether he has the historian's art remains to be proved. Certainly it is an eventful period through which he has officially moved and in substantial respects has importantly influenced. A studious rather than a striking figure, the Cummins book, presumably, will be scrupulous as to its statements of fact and balanced in its expressions of judgment, but it need not be dull simply because it is not written in jazz tempo.

In his 19 years in Washington Mr. Cummins has seen reputations bloom and wither, heard Ciceros in-veigh whose thunderings have faded into echolless silence, witnessed Prince Mob's inconstancy that derides today whom yesterday he lauded. He has seen old principles, precious legacies, indeed, swept out unceremoniously by impatient innovation and has beheld the twin gods of Clamor and Expediency in sole possession of our political Olympus.

We have had two permanent books out of official Washington: Benton's "Thirty Years' View" and Blaine's "Twenty Years in Congress." Here's hoping Cummins gives us a third.

A FRENCH JUDGMENT OF MENCKEN.

If you have known the horrors of our own Hall of Fame and seen the sentimental clutter in Westminster Abbey you come to respect the judgment of the French, who have not buried anyone in their Pantheon since Zola. Leon Daudet, editor of L'Action Francaise, has been weighing our intellectual pope, H. L. Mencken. He says:

Mencken is not an infallible judge. Whole regions of literature and art are dead letters to him. He is a pure materialist. He stays close to the ground. His religious opinions carry no weight at all, incapable as he is to take into consideration the spiritual needs of humanity. His judgments are often baroque, so he puts on the same plane a writer of popular novels like Sinclair Lewis with a dramatic genius like Eugene O'Neill.

This is not the judgment of Mr. Mencken's biographers. It will be a shock to most college boys. Nevertheless, one comes in time to respect the judgment of the French, who had plenty of opportunities to show their capacity before the pontificating of Mencken prompted Frenchman Daudet to say this.

POEM.

(The kind that made Walt Whitman famous.)

I sing!
I sing America!
Not the song; I don't know the words;
I sing the country
In the manner of a real-estate agent.
I sing America!
But that is taking in too much territory;
I shall have to be more specific!
I would not care to sing about the Eastern states.
Pennsylvania smells bad!
I shall cross the Mississippi.
And sing Missouri!
I sing Missouri!
The home of Senator Reed!
I shall cross the river on the Eads Bridge;
It costs more than it does to cross the Free Bridge.
But it is shorter.
(Or is it? I never measured them)
And takes me nearer to where I want to go.
I sing St. Louis!
I sing Olive street!
Olive street is narrow, but the city intends to widen it.
I sing Olive street the way it is now.
Reserving the widened street for another poem.
I sing Grand avenue!
I sing the corner of Grand and Olive!
I sing Grand avenue, north from Olive street;
I sing both sides of the street.
I sing the flappers and the sheiks who walk along Grand avenue.
On both sides of the street!
I sing the flappers painted like drug store cowboys.
And their sheiks, made up as drug store cowboys.
But what do you expect in the West—Tuxedos and evening gowns?
I sing the flappers, chewing gum like discontented cows.
And the sheiks, smoking cigarettes I'd walk a mile from.
If it were not so infernally hot!
I sing the whole mob.
Fellow-American, friend, comrade, brother.
I sing you!
The crowd seem to be enjoying themselves!
That is what life was made for—To enjoy!
I sing!

We are naturally timid, so we shall never find out by asking the ladies. But we are simply dying to know if the fair sex get as much enjoyment out of viewing the clusters of males on downtown street corners as the aforesaid clusters get out of looking at the leader of the species.

We have neglected to inquire if the President has a photograph at the Adirondack retreat, but if he has, we guess that his favorite selection is that old Irish one about the pikes being ready at the rising of the moon.

London papers call Gen. Andrews "America's prohibition czar." We presume that, if the rum chasers are at all successful, he will be known as "America's prohibition Caesar."

July, so far, has not been as hot as it might be. Yet if the cool days delay the fly-swarming contests, who shall say that a cool July is without its compensations?

A NOTE ON MUSIC.

The saxophone is a musical instrument. I know, but I looked it up in the dictionary. The dictionary says it is a musical instrument, so what can you do? It was invented by a man named Sax, but history is silent as to why or how he invented it. The saxophone merely serves to illustrate how different temperaments react to adversity. Socrates, unfortunate in marriage, left us a system of philosophy; Patrick Henry, fretful under the rule of an English King, cried: "Give me liberty or give me death!" What nameless misfortune, what dreaded phobia, caused Mr. Sax to invent or compound the horror that bears his name?

Saxophones are all right in their place. But why does every love-sick youth buy one? And why are so many youths love-sick? 'Twas better in the old days; they contented themselves with sonnets on her eyebrow. A poet, while he may declaim his amorous verses to his light of love, does not rend the sweetly scented twilight air with the hoarse howlings, snortings and wallings which signify saxophone practice. Saxophones are bought; that proves salesmanship. They are also practiced on; that shows a total disregard for the neighbors.

SEE IF YOU CAN GET THE RIGHT ANSWER.

(From Brisbane's Column, "Today.")
Sometimes Uncle Sam makes money. The big sugar men of the United States formed a sugar equalization board to control prices in the war. The Government put in $5,000,000 and yesterday received from that board, which ceases to exist, a check for $11,000,000, making a total of $41,000,000 profit for the Government on its investment of $5,000,000.

Drinking scenes are to be eliminated from the movies. Hip! Hip! Hooray! They always made us thirsty. Now if they will only delete scenes of violence, we shall, with Gen. Wolfe, die happy. We are not concerned about the morals of the young, but we detest the Hungarian Rhapsody.

If all the men who watch a steam shovel hour after hour are out of work, it looks bad for Republican prosperity.

About that break in the water main on Pershing avenue which the Water Department has been trying to locate for two weeks, may we suggest that Mr. Wall, who lives in that block, come to the rescue and, like the little Holland boy who saved the dykes, "put his finger on the spot?"

The MIRROR OF PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to represent without bias the latest comment of leading publicists, newspapermen and others on the questions of the day.

A QUESTION OF RIGHT?

From the Muncie (Ind.) Press.

A DISTINGUISHED commencement orator recently denounced in Muncie the motto carried at the head of the editorial page of the Chicago Tribune: "Our country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right, but our country, right or wrong." These are the words of Admiral Decatur, the trepid American naval commander. Decatur was speaking as a naval commander in the service of his country. It was sworn duty to defend his own country, not to defend the cause of right or wrong. That was the duty of the Revolutionary War and in the Civil War. Since the European War the cause is afflicted with a large number of people who have the habit of insisting that all the ills of the world are due to American selfishness and error. It is, after all, better to be for your country, right or wrong, than to be against it, right or wrong, which seems to be the ailment of our present-day internationalists. Their right spirit is never aroused except against the policies of their country, or some combination of single-hearted even if successful blind patriotism such as found expression in the words of Admiral Decatur. Then cease to be pacifists and reveal the influence of spirit which is the real cause of all wars.

A STRIKE BENEFIT.

From the Watertown Times.

NEW YORK has a subway strike on. London strike resulted in a general improvement of health because it forced thousands of persons to walk to their work. Walking to work would not hurt the New Yorkers, although they would have to get up a little earlier in the morning, but would not get home quite as early at night. But the strike will not last long. The city is too vital a part of the city's transportation to be tied up indefinitely.

ATTABOY, ALFONSO!

From the Baltimore Sun.

ATTABOY, Alfonso! That optimistic speech about Spain has the right ring. Even while anarchists plot and growl, it sounds good to hear that Spain "marching ahead with lightning speed." This is no time for pessimism. And though modern science affirms that electricity in lightning does not move unerringly forward, but oscillates with unbelievable rapidity, the metaphor seems to be outlawed on that account. May the King, who is a shrewd ruler, maintain that. Not a few European countries are that appearance.

TUBERCULOSIS DAY

ATTRACTS 18

Bands, Athletic Events, Ball Game Keep Big C Enthusiastic.

About 18,000 persons gathered at Sportman's Park yesterday for the slogan "good health all." It was Tuberculosis Day, the only one made to realize the slogan. "T. B." also stands for "The Cardinals." However, it is barely possible that they may console themselves with the thought that even the ball game may be sacrificed to the Tuberculosis Society. There was nothing else—not even police interference, as last year, to mar the wholesome recreation.

Keen air and brilliant sun were the kind prescribed by the doctor, even though the sun may have seemed an over-enthusiastic on the field, not to mention the bleachers crowded. Even in the healthful excitement of watching athletic men and girls in pretty pagentry, fans might pick up a few on "How to live a hundred years." "He who has a good head has a good head," said one of the speakers, "and he who has a good head has a good head." Where Friction Was A

It was in the matter of score cards that friction was to be avoided. There were distributed coupons for "gifts" valued at $30, valued by business men. Coupons spectators could use for their estimate, for the maximum, including an automobile, piano, or the number of corn, wheat and oats in a fallow glass jug. Previously the cry had been "Buy a score card." The 300 young women who to do would wheedle, "I have another program," same time suggestively box for "contributions." Score cards were sold, was 25 cents each. That was the average amount of contribution card.

When the ball game 17,000 had paid admission, half that number, including three hours earlier, festivities got under way. Concert by the Missouri chorus and three band, precision of the band and the majority of the school boys. Edward's Drum and Band were much appreciated. Mail Carriers' Band down the house when "Annie Rooney." Taste of the same was observed again three women winners of Safety Council's drive demonstrated their maneuver automobiles route. Sprinkling of hard not the two big cars was applauded, but the "T. B. Ball players took the for more practice. An off. Followed a lull, but about, there he comes through the gate at the of the field. They carried three rangements for pyrotechnics. Each, it seemed, redoubled applause. "Living star" that was one thought it must be a finale. But no. Bands, Athletic Events and Ball Game Keep Big Crowd Enthusiastic.

About 18,000 persons gathered at Sportsman's Park yesterday under the slogan "good health for all." It was Tuberculosis day, and the only ones made to realize that "B" also stands for "too bad" were the Cardinals. They lost.

However, it is barely possible that they may console themselves with the thought that even a baseball game may be sacrificed to the tuberculosis society. There was nothing else—not even fear of police interference, as last year—to mar the wholesome revelry of the occasion.

Keen air and brilliant sunlight were the kind prescribed by the doctor, even though the sunlight may have seemed an overdose to the bands, singers and contestants on the field, not to mention the bleacher crowd. Even in lulls between the healthful excitement of watching athletic men and husky girls in pretty pagentry, spectators might pick up a few pointers as to how to live a hundred years or learn that "Ho who eats cabbage has a good head" by glancing at their score cards.

Where Friction Was Avoided. It was in the matter of these score cards that friction with police had to be avoided. With them were distributed coupons calling for "gifts" valued at $20,000, provided by business men. On the coupons spectators could enter their estimate, for the major prizes, including an automobile and a piano, of the number of grains of corn, wheat and oats in a five-gallon glass jug.

Previously the cry had been, "Buy a score card." This year the 300 young women who had it to do would wheedle, "Won't you have another program?" at the same time suggestively shaking a box for "contributions." When score cards were sold, the price was 25 cents each. Apparently that was the average amount yesterday of contribution per score card.

When the ball game began 17,000 had paid admission. More than half that number were waiting three hours earlier when the festivities got under way with a concert by the Missouri Pacific chorus and three bands. The happy precision of the Sixth Infantry band and the man-size virtuosity of the school boys in St. Edward's Drum and Bugle Corps were much appreciated. But the Mall Carriers' Band brought down the house when it played "Annie Rooney."

Women Show How to Drive. Taste of the same genial sort was observed again when the three women winners of the Safety Council's driving contest demonstrated their ability to maneuver automobiles along a route somewhat scrambled by a liberal sprinkling of barrels. It was not the two big cars which were applauded, but the "Lizzie."

Ball players took the field again for more practice. An excited little man ran out and called them off. Followed a lull, broken by a shout, "Here he comes!"

A shock of red hair had popped through the gate at the west side of the field. Staggering under it from exhaustion, not from the heat, was Harold Sheedy, 16, of Baden. He circled the infield, stumbled across the tape a good 10 seconds ahead of the next runner in the junior marathon, and called hoarsely for a piece of ice. Representing St. Stephen's Evangelical Church against 172 other entrants, he had run the 2.5-mile course from Fairgrounds Park in 13 minutes and 55 seconds, several minutes better than the winning time last year, when he finished sixth.

Wanted More Wand Drilling. Girls in black and white and boys in white, all from Sherman Park, took the field for an impromptu drill with flashing steel wands. They left under protest from the stands. Prizes were presented to the winners. The field was cleared and back came the boys and girls from Sherman Park, this time all in white.

They carried three ladder arrangements for pyramid formations. Each, it seemed, brought redoubled applause. One was a "living star" that was so pretty one thought it must be the "grand finale." But no. White-clad figures scurried up the ladders again and a stocky photographer dashed to the center of the field. "Bang!" The director fired a revolver, the photographer fled and, with the celerity of patriotic magic, the performers swung out from the ladders and waved each an American flag.

ANNIVERSARY OF FALL OF THE BASTILLE CELEBRATED

About 200 St. Louisans of French Birth or Descent Took Part in the Exercises.

The one hundred and thirty-seventh anniversary of the fall of the Bastille, the French national holiday, was celebrated last night by some 200 St. Louisans of French birth or descent. They met at the Marigold Gardens, Hamilton avenue and Delmar boulevard, where a program of speeches and music was given, and then moved to the Davis place, at Clayton and North and South roads, where there were fireworks and dancing.

The significance of the day was interpreted by Prof. Gabriel Ferrand of Washington University, president of the French Society of St. Louis. He likened the political crisis which caused the upheaval of July 14, 1789, to the financial crisis which now prevails in France. A tyranny of economic pressure has replaced a tyranny of autocrats, he said.

Marc Seguin, French Consul in St. Louis, drew a word picture of France struggling uphill under the burden of war debt and urged his audience not to lose faith in their mother country.

Ernest A. Green, president of the St. Louis Bar Association, spoke of French pioneers in America. He pointed to a bronze bust of Lafayette, by Victor S. Holm, and given by him to the French Society, and urged that it be placed in one of the city parks as a proper pedestal.

Dr. Armand Ravold, a former pupil of Pasteur, described the great French bacteriologist. Mme. Gabriel Ferrand sang "La Marseillaise," there were other songs, and a motion picture of the fall of the Bastille was shown.

MISS CLAIRE McDONALD

When friends tell bonny Miss Claire McDonald, 5642 Homans Ave., Elmhurst, Long Island, her complexion is lovely as a bit of Scotch heather, she says, I surely owe that to Black and White 'Innocence of Flowers' Face Powder, which is the only one I've ever found that doesn't cake on my face with a chalky, mask-like effect. This soft, fluffy powder stays on for hours with a velvet smoothness so natural looking it seems to belong to my skin.

The exquisitely textured Black and White Face Powder, delicately fragrant with "Innocence of Flowers" Perfume, can be gotten in dainty 50c packages from more than 30,000 dealers everywhere.

PROPOSED CRIME CODE DOES AWAY WITH HUNG JURIES

trial and on such retrial defendant shall be subject to prosecution on the original charge made in the indictment, even though he may have been convicted at the first trial of some lesser offense.

(The purpose of this section is to prevent avoidable delay in connection with appeals, without prejudicing the rights of defendants.)

XVII.

NO COURT authorized to place a defendant on probation shall consider and pass upon an application therefor without giving reasonable notice to the prosecuting officer and according him a right to be publicly heard thereon. No public official authorized to hear or grant pardons or paroles shall consider an application therefor until reasonable notice has been given. If possible, to the prosecuting officer who secured such conviction, the prosecuting officer of the county at the time of said application and the trial judge; and the decision by a public official granting a parole or pardon shall state the reasons why the same is granted, which statement shall be made public five days before such pardon or parole becomes effective.

(While the pardon and probation system is now recognized as a good and necessary feature in modern American criminal justice, in some States grave abuses have appeared in connection with pardons and probations. This section is directed against these abuses.)

XVIII.

A DEFENDANT appealing from a judgment or conviction shall remain in custody unless the trial court shall on granting the appeal certify (provided the charge is one which is bailable) that there is in its opinion reasonable ground for the prosecution of said appeal. The Appellate Court shall on application also have the power to issue such certificate. In case of such certificate the defendant shall be released on bond fixed by the trial or Appellate Court.

XIX.

WHENEVER a person under indictment desires to offer a plea of insanity, he shall present such plea 10 days before trial or such time thereafter as the Court may direct.

(b) If a defendant, when brought to trial for a criminal offense, appears to the Court to be or is claimed by his counsel to be insane, so that he cannot understand the proceedings against him or assist in his defense, the question of his sanity shall first be determined, and if he is found to be insane he shall not be tried, but shall be confined in a proper institution. If later he is found to be sane, he shall then be brought before the Court on the original charge and the prosecution shall not be prejudiced by such lapse of time.

(c) Whenever in the trial of a criminal case the defense of insanity at the time of the commission of the criminal act is raised, the Judge of the trial court may call one or more disinterested qualified experts, not exceeding three, to testify at the trial, and if the Judge does so, he shall notify counsel for both the prosecution and defense of the witnesses so called, giving their names and addresses. On the trial of the case, the witnesses so called by the Court may be examined by counsel for the prosecution and defense. Such calling of witnesses by the Court shall not preclude the prosecution or defense from calling other expert witnesses at the trial. The witnesses called by the Judge shall be allowed such fees as, in the discretion of the Judge, may seem just and reasonable, having regard to the service performed by the witnesses. The fees so allowed shall be paid by the county where the indictment was found.

(d) Whenever in any indictment or information a person is charged with a criminal offense arising out of some act or omission, and it is given in evidence on trial of such person for the offense that he was insane at the time when the alleged act of omission occurred, then if the jury before whom such person is tried concludes that he did the act or made the omission, but by reason of his insanity was not guilty according to law for the crime charged, then the jury shall return a special verdict that the accused did the act or made the omission but was not guilty of the crime charged by reason of his insanity.

(e) When the special verdict provided for in Section D is found, the court shall immediately order an inquisition to determine whether the prisoner is at the time insane, so as to be a menace to the public safety. If it is found that the prisoner is not insane as aforesaid, then he shall be immediately discharged from custody. If he is found to be insane as aforesaid, then the Judge shall order that he be committed to the State hospital for the insane, to be confined there until he has so far regained his sanity that he is no longer a menace to the public safety.

(This section has to do with the borderline between law and medicine. The practice suggested has already been established in some States, and undoubtedly is far preferable to the archaic practice of the common law which exists in most States.)

XX.

AFTER an indictment has been returned for an information filed in a court of record, there shall be no nolle prosequi entered except on a written statement of the prosecutor, giving his reasons therefor. If, in the opinion of the trial court, such reasons are not sufficient to justify such action, the Judge can refuse to enter said dismissal or he can make further investigation as to whether such case should be prosecuted. If prosecution shall continue, he shall have the authority, if he thinks the interests of justice require it, to appoint a special prosecutor to conduct said case.

(A nolle prosequi in a criminal case is an abandonment of prosecution by the chief prosecuting officer.)

Statement of Opinion.

One of the reasons that prompted the members of the Committee on Criminal Procedure and Judicial Administration of the National Crime Commission to propose the first section of the "outline" was the opinion that it is improper for police officers or other officials engaged in administering the criminal law to attempt to obtain a confession or other evidence of guilt from a suspected person by the use of force, violence, intimidation or other oppressive measures; and the belief that such an examination is thus provided for would tend to prevent such practices.

It was also the opinion of the committee that if a defendant committed to a penal institution after conviction is later clearly proved to be innocent of the offense for which he was convicted, it ought to be a part of the public duty of the State to see that he is reimbursed on account of the damage done through such a miscarriage of justice.

CITY HALL BOYS TOLD TO SWAT KOELN IN PRIMARY

HIS CARDS DISPLAYED IN EFFICIENCY ROOM

Municipal Benevolent Association Busy in Behalf of Proctor's Candidacy and Neumann's Ambition.

City employees have been informed, through department and institutional heads, that they are expected to "deliver" a heavy vote for Charles A. Neumann, candidate for the Republican nomination for City Collector in the primary Aug. 3.

Neumann is one of three candidates opposing Collector Koeln, who is seeking renomination. Neumann is Alderman from the Twelfth Ward, and vice president of the Board of Aldermen.

Neumann is the local candidate in whom Mayor Miller is chiefly interested. If city employees will support Neumann for Collector, and Proctor for United States Senator, they may make their own selections for the rest of the ticket, provided they do not support any open antagonist of the Mayor. That is the understanding around the City Hall.

The Mayor has not said publicly that city employees must support Neumann. When asked about the matter, he says, "I'm going to vote for Charlie Neumann. That's all I have to say. I couldn't be expected to vote for Koeln."

Signs of Pressure.

But the pressure on city employees, through department heads, in behalf of Neumann, has been unmistakable. In the headquarters of the efficiency board, Neumann cards are displayed under the glass tops of the tables of Chairman Kirchels and Secretary Klene. Kirchels, when asked if he distributed the Neumann cards to applicants for city jobs, said, "I might hand some of them to my friends if they came in."

Klene recently held a meeting of Twenty-Eighth Ward city employees in behalf of William R. Gilbert, candidate for committeeman, and Neumann. Alfred Rammann called a like meeting in the Fifteenth Ward. The Municipal Benevolent Association, which appears now to be a going organization, is a vehicle of active work for Proctor and Neumann.

Threat of Loss of Jobs.

Supporters of Henry L. Berger for committeeman in the Second Ward claiming administration support, and city employees are said to have been told that if they did not "put Berger over," their jobs would be in danger. It has not appeared whether this talk was authorized, or was merely the expression of zealous ward workers.

Neumann, who was originally backed by Koeln for the City Committee, and for the Board of Aldermen, opposed Koeln two years ago in his own ward, the Twelfth, when he backed J. N. McKelvey against Koeln's candidacy. For Schulz, for the nomination for Sheriff, Schulz carried the ward and the city. In the primary of 1925, Neumann was for Alonzo while Koeln was for Judge Grimm. Koeln carried the ward for Grimm, and Alonzo ran third in the ward. With the Mayor's backing, Neumann is trying to retrieve these defeats in the August primary.

Comptroller Nolte is actively supporting Koeln, and reports of a new political alliance between Nolte and Mayor Miller were denied today.

MINE NEAR BELLEVILLE SEALED TO PUT OUT FIRE

Fire, started by a blast set off last Saturday to shoot coal in the Reichert Coal Co. mine at Freeburg, southeast of Belleville, has set fire to the coal in one of the rooms in the mine and as a result the mine was sealed yesterday in an effort to smother the flames. The fire was discovered when the men went to work Monday. It had gained such headway that all efforts to check it failed.

A mine rescue team from DuQuoin was called to the scene but the smoke was so dense and the heat so intense that the men could not enter the room where the fire is raging. It was then decided to seal the mine by constructing concrete walls at main shaft and air-shaft.

Manager W. A. Wilson says the mine will have to remain sealed two months. Sixty men were thrown out of work as a result of the fire. The Reichert mine was the only one working in the vicinity of Freeburg the men having an opportunity of putting in two and three days a week.

FIRE STILL SMOLDERS AT WRECKED ARSENAL

Sporadic Explosions at Lake Denmark, N. J., Cause Special Precautions by Guards.

By the Associated Press.

DOVER, N. J., July 15.—Strict watch was continued today at the ruins of the Lake Denmark, N. J., naval ammunition depot over smoldering fires which might cause further explosions. Marines patrolled the section in which the lightning Saturday caused an explosion that killed at least 22 persons, injured more than 100 and destroyed 200 buildings.

The number of these known to have lost their lives increased to 22 with the finding of the unidentified body of a man not far from the area in which most of the victims were found.

Fires in various parts of the naval arsenal today were combated by details of Marines. None is regarded as dangerous. Shells, some of 14-inch caliber, continued to explode today in the wrecked magazines, and the intermittent discharges of boxes of fuses added to the warlike atmosphere.

Yesterday the guards laid a half mile of hose to the waters of a small lake to be used in case of emergency.

An army board for two days has been investigating the extent and amount of damage to the army post at Picatinny, which adjoins the naval depot and where practically all the buildings except those used for the storage of ammunition are so shattered that they must be rebuilt.

A naval board under Rear Admiral F. R. Harris will consider damage to property not owned by the Government, and tomorrow a court of inquiry which is to hear the testimony of survivors and investigate all other circumstances of the catastrophe will convene here under Rear Admiral R. E. Coontz. The body of Capt. Burwell Haydn Clarke, victim of the explosion was identified by finger prints and inspection of teeth at the Brooklyn Naval Hospital last night. Capt. Clarke was appointed to the Marine Corps from Little Rock, Ark. Relatives have made arrangements to claim the body.

MINIATURE SEADROME TESTED BEFORE NAVAL AIR EXPERTS

Landing Place for Seaplanes, Designed to Be Anchored in Mid-Ocean, Declared Practical. By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—A miniature seadrome, or landing field for seaplanes, was put through a series of tests here in a make-believe ocean by Edward R. Armstrong, chief research engineer for the E. I. Dupont de Nemours Co. The demonstration convinced him, he said, that his theory of placing a number of floating and anchored landing fields across the Atlantic Ocean, on which transatlantic planes may alight, was sound.

Army and navy men, shipbuilders, naval architects and financial men were witnesses of the demonstration which took place at the Armstrong country estate in Delaware. Here his guests viewed a model landing field and a model seaplane riding in a deep pool, representing the ocean. The seadrome was anchored and the ship was turned loose. Then an apparatus of revolving planks made waves, corresponding in scale, to those of midocean. The vessel also made to scale, appeared ready to sink as the height of the waves increased. Attention turned to the seadrome as the waves beat against it. Instead of dashing against it they split and passed between steel pilings which formed the lower portion of the seadrome.

Byrd Shakes Negro Boy's Hand. BALTIMORE.—Vernon Hawkins, diminutive Negro lad, embraced an opportunity to shake hands with fame. While Commander Richard Evelyn Byrd, North Pole flyer, was being received at city hall, Vernon sandwiched himself among the flock of city officials, gravely returned a bow and handclasp from the commander, and marched out, his four feet of dignity expanded to the bursting point.

COST OF PRODUCING CROPS

Figures Compiled by Illinois College of Agriculture. URBANA, Ill.—Figures just released by the farm organization and management department of the college of agriculture of the University of Illinois, on the 1925 cost of producing farm products on 16 Champaign and Piatt county farms show that it took 57 cents to grow a bushel of corn, $1.12 to produce a bushel of wheat and $10.69 to produce 100 pounds of pork.

As for other crops, the bill for a bushel of oats cost 65 cents on 15 of the 16 farms; soybeans cost an average of $1.25 a bushel while alfalfa hay was produced at a cost of $10.51 a ton. That there is a big opportunity for greater efficiency is shown by the wide differences in the cost of the same product on different farms, the report pointed out.

A Child's Laxative which Mothers Can Rely On

Dr. Caldwell's SYRUP PEPSIN

Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 30 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated infants and children had to be kept "stirred up" with half wick by taking cathartics, pills, salts, calomel and other drugs.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all children's little ills, he constantly advised mothers to give only a harmless laxative which would help to establish natural bowel "regularity."

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a laxative which they can depend upon when-

DICTATOR'S SALARY

ONLY $400 A MONTH

Mussolini Is an Intensely Occupied Genius—Holds Six Portfolios.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch and The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service

ROME, June 5.—"Is Mussolini a sincere patriot or only an egoist?" is one of the questions most frequently asked about the Italian dictator. It cannot be answered if you insist on making the two contradictory. There is no reason to suppose that Mussolini does not sincerely love his country. There is also no reason to suppose that he does not enjoy exercising the vast power which he wields. But there is, further, no reason why he should not do the one while doing the other. Certainly, he is no grifter. He sincerely despises money. He is today, outside of his salary $400 a month and his expense allowance, a poor man.

Besides the large numbers of speeches, which he must make, corner stones which he must dedicate, interviews which he must grant, trips which he must undertake and dinners which he must attend, he is responsible for six ministries in the Cabinet, including the adjustment of all wage scales and labor disputes, and must keep in order his very obstreperous fascist party of 600,000 excitable young men. To do all this, he must either handle the details himself or find the man he can trust to do it.

Perhaps the core of Mussolini's character is physical. His vital dynamo has so much more horsepower than that of ordinary men that work is a necessity to him, as food is to most. While he was convalescing from his intestinal ulcer, and living on milk and mush, he was taking on one new ministry after another. Now, he sometimes works intensely through the whole night and appears fresh at his desk in the morning.

Absolutism Supreme.

Much of the mechanism of his present system is adapted from that of the bolsheviks. The essence of it is the supremacy of the executive, directed by a single will and intelligence. This is not new. But absolutism today is a mechanism a hundred times more complex than was absolutism in the eighteenth century. Mussolini's genius, if it is genius, consists in transforming the complex elements of modern society into a machine which absolutism can work.

But how does he get away with it? is a frequent question. Is it by force, or by persuasion; by brutality or by favors; by making himself loved or making himself feared? The only difficulty in that question lies in the word "or." He gets away with it by using all at once.

His Diverse Gifts.

The diversity of his personal gifts is manifested to his visitors. To the newspaper men he is simple and urbane, talking realistically and quite without pose. To visiting dignitaries he is gracious, with a malicious pleasure in astonishing by unexpected bluntness of statement. When he wishes to be severe, he has a trick of opening his eyes very wide so that the whites are visible entirely around the piercing black pupils. Some who have seen those whites needed a week's rest to recover their nerves. Yet at times one sees in his face an almost feminine gentleness of expression. Sometimes he sits through long sessions of the chamber sniffing a rose which he holds daintily in his left hand. To women he sometimes shows a contemptuous bon camaraderie, which proves fascinating. At a recent reception, a flock of aristocratic ladies were waiting in a corner, with fluttering hearts, to be presented to the great man. He entered, took one look at the cohort, bowed, said, "I salute you en bloc," and passed on. They loved him.

Physical vitality, capacity for work, agility and flexibility of mind, intuition of the hopes and fears of the mob, the appearance of reckless daring, the reputation for victory, ruthlessness in punishment, generosity in rewards, magic of language and above all, his quarter of a million armed young men, organized in every city and village of the land—a thunderbolt always held in his upraised hand—all these together and not any one or two of them, are the elements of his power.

Get Injunctions in Tax Cases.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 15.—Acting on the petition of the Missouri Pacific and St. Louis Southwestern Railroads, Judge Louis Fitz Henry has issued a temporary injunction in Federal Court enjoining Secretary of State Emerson and Attorney-General Clegg from in any way hindering the operations of the two companies in this State because of their failure to pay State franchise taxes. The Missouri Pacific alleged that it should be required to pay a franchise tax based on the amount of capital stock issued instead of that authorized. The St. Louis

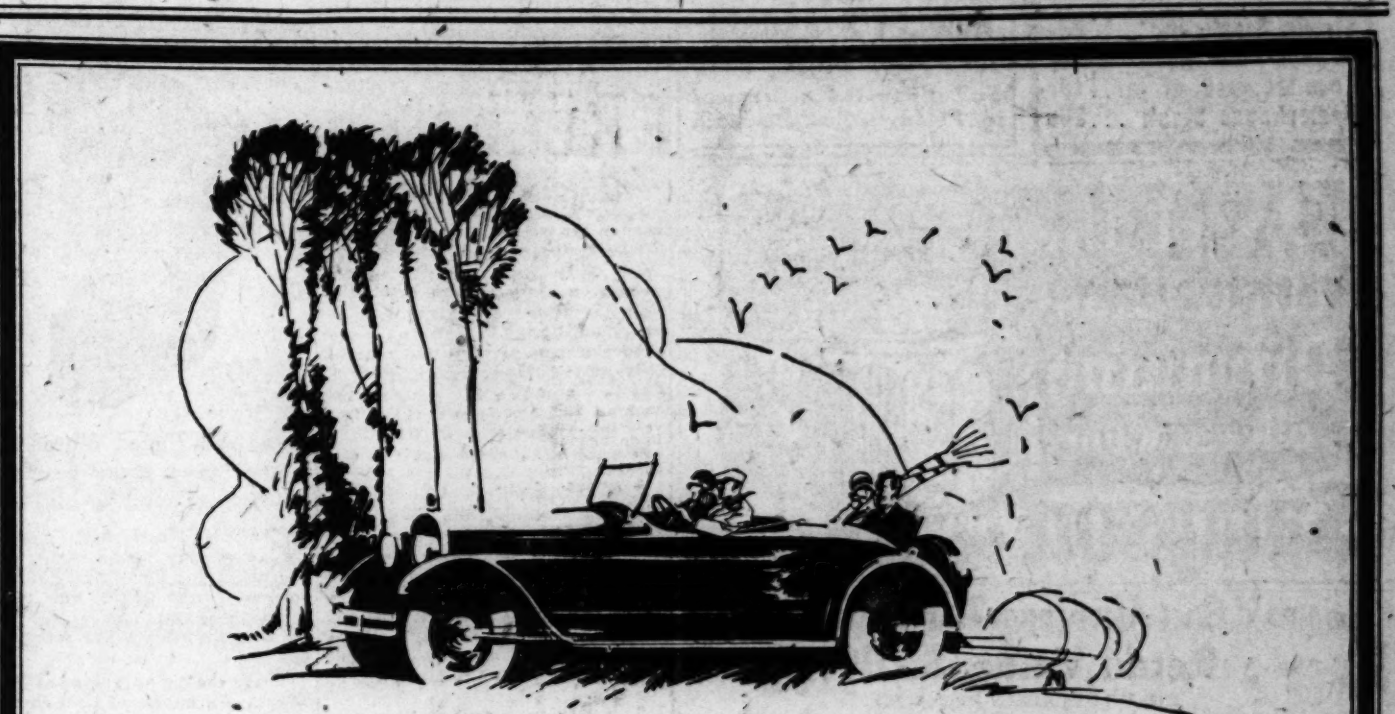

Southwestern Railroad alleged that it was asked to pay a minimum tax of $1000, required by the State from companies operating in but not owning property in this State, which is almost half the amount of business done in the State by the road.

WORLD-GIRDLING TIME REDUCED BY A WEEK
Using Ships, Planes and Racing Auto, Two Americans Make Trip in 28 Days.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 15.—Airplanes, ocean liners, express trains and racing automobiles have outdone Jules Verne's wildest dream of speedy world-girdling. With the globe in one-third of Verne's hero's time and lopped a week from the actual record made more than a decade ago.

Linton O. Wells and Edward S. Evans came into New York in a racing car yesterday and alighted at the Pulitzer Building exactly 23 days, 14½ hours after they departed on a tugboat to catch the liner Aquitania down the bay en route to Europe.

In the interim they had crossed France, Germany, Russia, Siberia, China, Japan and the United States. Eight thousand of the 20-100 miles traversed were by airplane, with 11 stops and not one accident.

The world-girdlers spent Tuesday night at Rantoul, Ill., losing a number of hours because the planes in which they had come from Seattle were not equipped for night flying. They allowed themselves only three hours sleep between Seattle and New York, tumbling from their planes to racing cars at Mitchell Field for the last dash of the trip.

The previous world-girdling record was made in 1913 by John Henry Mears, who bettered Jules Verne's fiction estimate of "around the world in 80 days" by performing the feat in 35 days, 21 hours and 35 minutes.

OFF FOR EUROPEAN TOUR
The Chamber of Commerce Good Will delegation of 94 persons departed at 10 p. m. yesterday by special train for Canada. A large crowd of friends and relatives was at Union Station to bid the party farewell.

Tomorrow will be spent in Quebec, and the party will sail Saturday on the S. S. Montevideo for Liverpool. The delegation, composed mainly of business men and their wives, will visit England and the European continent. Trade conditions abroad will be studied. The delegation is expected to return to St. Louis the latter part of August.

Everyday FOLKS and their Breakfasts
Earl Richter Traffic Officer Minneapolis Police Force

Starts with Puffed Wheat, food that "tastes good" besides being "good for him"

"EATING food that's good for you may be all right," says Earl Richter (thousands know his smile—he's the largest man on the Minneapolis police force), "but give me food that tastes like something, too."

That's the big advantage of Puffed Wheat—it combines vital elements of wheat, that active men need for health's sake, with the rich deliciousness that they want for their appetite's sake.

It tastes like toasted nutmeats, and crunches in the mouth like fresh toast. Its flavor is different from any other grain food known.

It is steam puffed to eight times its normal size, with every food cell broken to make digestion easy. It is oven toasted, which makes it attractive as a confection. Children eat their breakfast cereal this way without coaxing.

Costs only a few cents more for a whole package than ordinary cereals. But what's a few pennies more when you get something the family really likes? Get a package at any grocery store. Make it tomorrow's breakfast.

MAN STANDS SIEGE OF SUMMER HOME
New Owner Orders Her to Move and Orders Light and Water Cut Off.
By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, July 15.—Seven persons were in hospitals today tonight injured as the result of a fight between a robber and two policemen in the thick of the theater rush last night, at Broadway and Forty-eighth street.
The shooting imperiled hundreds who were swarming to the theaters. The robber was wounded, probably fatally. The others injured, three of them women, were bystanders. Among them are Philip Bayome, N. J., and his 14-year-old daughter, Edith.
A man went into a restaurant on Eighth avenue and Fifty-first street, and with a drawn pistol, demanded customers to throw up their hands. All rushed him and fled after firing one shot without effect. Then the police began to shoot, with the robber firing from a doorway in which he was cornered. Finally the robber became unconscious from four police bullets. He was identified as Henry Miller of Buffalo, 35 years old.
This was the second such fight in a crowded street in New York within 36 hours. In the earlier fray two detectives and two prisoners they were taking to police headquarters were wounded in a fight with men in an automobile on rescue.

PEKIN A CITY THAT NEEDS EXPLANATION
Its Location Is Preposterous, Its Advantages Nil, Yet It Is Prize of China.
By the Associated Press. PEKIN, China, June 11.—"Pekin is the bone of contention and the apple of discord," says an American who knows the situation. "All the tups, tuchuns and warlords of China want it and will not be happy without it. It is the lodestone of all ambitions in this distracted land."
Pekin utterly lacks the natural advantages that go to make the cities that have lured the world conquerors to victory and defeat. No ships approach it from the seven seas, for Peking is far from the ocean and far from any navigable river. It is now reached by canal; barges bring in food and merchandise, but even the canals had to be dug, by the labor of countless sweating coolies. Yet Peking was famous before the canals were cut.
One railway enters it from the port of Tientsin and another from central China, far to the south. Still another rail line stretches from Peking to the northwest, but connects with nothing and seems to get nowhere. The place is cold in winter and frightfully hot in summer, subject to dust storms that blow in from the light soil of the farm lands near at hand and from Mongolia far away. The wind from Mongolia "has twisted Peking into the well-known trilogy that London is famous for its fogs, Tokio for its mud, Peking for its dust."
Peking has 70,000 rickshaw men and more than as many beggars, men, women and children—but no tall chimneys belching forth black smoke from the furnaces of modern industry. It has no coal of its own and no water power. It owns, however, the glory of tradition, the aura of old days and ancient romance, of classical learning.
Among its treasures are the singular beauty of old and gleaming palaces and temples, and a lovely setting in a wide and fertile plain, above which the air shimmers in the summer sun, while the western hills, a three hours' walk away, invite to coolness and rest.
Yes, there is something about Peking that holds everybody, native and foreign: some narcotic charm that captivates the white man and has stimulated the lust for power in the bosom of the Asiatic.
So the city remains, the delight of the visitor and the symbol of victory to the fighting men of Cathay.

OPPOSITION IS FIRM SAYS FILIPINO LEADER
Problems of Independence Not Shelved With Thompson's Arrival, He Indicates.
By the Associated Press. MANILA, July 15.—That element of the Philippine population aligned with Manuel Quezon, independence leader, will continue to oppose development of the island's resources in competition with American capital, Quezon makes clear.
"I learn in dispatches from Washington since the Thompson mission has reached here that the people of the United States have been getting a false impression regarding opinion in the Philippines," he said in an interview, and then declared:
"The problem of independence is not shelved. It is a burning question of the moment, absolutely locked with the commercial development of the islands. We Filipinos are determined that, while the islands are not free, we shall continue to oppose development of the island's resources on a basis dictated by American big business companies. We will do all that is possible to block their endeavors."
"On the other hand, when our independence is granted, we will stand in these enterprises."
"Just now the need in the United States is an adequate supply of rubber. We realize that America requires her own sources of rubber and that we owe something to America."
"What shall we do? We are told to amend our land laws, but we are unwilling to barter away the future of our people. We believe that huge plantations are detrimental to the average man leading to peonage here as in Mexico. With rubber plantations of 2500 acres (the present limit of land holdings by a single individual or corporation in the Philippines) making money here under proper conditions, the rubber industry would be promoted by banks or by direct loans from the Government; thus many institutions would take part in rubber production. Bonafide companies would take up suitable land and we Filipinos would devote ourselves to providing the labor."
"Much land thus would be cultivated by many small companies, and the rubber industry would develop naturally like the coconut industry."
Quezon's informal reception to Col. Thompson, special investigator for President Coolidge, in the magnificent new legislative building, was a success. Everybody was happy over the friendly contacts established. Quezon himself gives the impression of great force. In 10 minutes of talk he shows why he is the leader here.

PEACE OR MILITARY RULE FOR HERRIN
Gov. Small Delivers Ultimatum in Withdrawing Troops After Three Months.
By the Associated Press. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 15.—Ordering troops withdrawn from Herrin, Gov. Len Small has addressed a letter to citizens of Williamson County advising them to keep the peace or be prepared for martial law.
"For the last three months," the Governor's letter read, "troops have been continuously stationed in your county. The expense of maintaining these troops has been borne by all of the people of the State and paid from appropriations made by the Legislature; and has amounted to more than $200,000. This condition can not and must not continue. I appeal to the law-abiding citizens of Williamson County and to the elected officials of the county to maintain order and enforce the law. If they fail to do this and it again becomes necessary to send troops into Williamson County I feel that it will be my duty to comply with requests and declare martial law in Williamson County suspending civil authorities in the municipalities and the county."
"I wish to make it clear, much as I regret the necessity to do so, that if I am compelled to return with full authority to govern the county and the municipalities where civil government has failed."
The Governor's letter was captioned "To the people of Williamson County" and opened with the statement "that on several occasions during the last four years it has been necessary to use the Illinois National Guard in Williamson County to suppress lawlessness, riot and murder."
It was sent newspapers at Marion, Johnson City and Herrin in Williamson County.
Herrin Mayor Believes Governor's Action Will Arouse Officials.
Special to the Post-Dispatch. HERRIN, Ill., July 15.—Mayor Marshall McCormack, when shown the telegram of Gov. Small concerning a threat of martial law in case of future violence in Williamson County stated: "If our Governor has decided to remove troops from the county and has appealed to duly elected officers and citizens to maintain order, warning them that a failure to do so will result in suspension of civil authorities in the county and municipalities. The Governor has certainly shown much patience in dealing with us and at last has decided on a definite course which really puts teeth in the proposition."
"I really believe this action on his part will arouse officials from their lethargy and cause our citizens to realize their responsibility to the Government. The Governor also warns the officials that the law must be enforced. This is the sure cure for existing evils, as 95 per cent of crime in Williamson County has been for lack of prosecution and punishment of crime. The Governor's message is heartily welcomed by the Herrin city administration."

LUTHERAN MISSOURI SYNOD INDORSSES SUNDAY RECREATION
Upholds Sequi Exposition, Saying God Has No Delight in Folk That Are Bored.
By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, July 15.—Asserting that God "takes no especial delight in people that are bored," the Evangelical Lutheran Missouri Synod has endorsed Sunday recreation. In a statement issued through the American Lutheran Publicity Bureau of New York City, the Press Committee of the Missouri Synod, the largest individual synod of the American Lutheran Church, upheld the action of St. John's Lutheran Church of Philadelphia in not withdrawing its support from the Sesqui-centennial Exposition.

DOG POPULATION OF U. S. IS APPROXIMATELY 7,000,000
Estimate of the Department of Agriculture Does Not Attempt Valuation of the Animals.
WASHINGTON.—The dog population of the United States is approximately 7,000,000, according to estimates, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The department, however, does not attempt to estimate the value of this livestock, for it is composed alike of animals with mixed or mongrel ancestry and canine aristocrats whose known parentage traces back through generations of pure-bred stock.
About 60 breeds of dogs are considered or enough consequence to be given a classification in the dog world. Only 46 of this number, however, are of sufficient importance in this country to warrant inclusion in Farmers' Bulletin 1491-F, Breeds of Dogs, just issued by the Bureau of Animal Industry.
A short discussion of each breed gives the reader concise information concerning the history, general characteristics, utility, and general reputation of the more important breeds of dogs in this country. A list of breed associations, with the addresses of their secretaries, is also included. A copy of the bulletin may be obtained, as long as the supply lasts, by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.
Josiah Kirby Starts for Prison.
By the Associated Press. CLEVELAND, O., July 15.—Josiah Kirby, former president of the defunct Cleveland Discount Co., started for the Atlanta Federal penitentiary yesterday, to begin a seven and one-half years' sentence imposed on him for using the mails to defraud. Kirby was accompanied to Atlanta by seven other Federal prisoners and half a dozen deputies.

PHILADELPHIA FAIR SUNDAYS
By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—Filing of an application for an injunction against opening the Sesqui-centennial Exposition on Sundays, and the issuance of warrants for the arrest of 12 exposition employees, charged with violating the State law of 1794 pertaining to Sunday amusements, are developments in the campaign of ministers and others to keep the exposition closed on the Sabbath.
Common Pleas Court Judge Finletter yesterday set next Monday to hear arguments for the injunction. The application was filed by an attorney for the Methodist Men's Committee. The same organization applied for the warrants. These charges, gatekeepers, cashiers, and ticket-sellers with misdeamors.
Three of those named in the warrants were arrested last night. One of them was Miss Janice E. Eichholtz, a student at the University of Pennsylvania, who was employed on the "Treasure Island" concession as a guide. She was attired in a Betty Ross costume when the Constable arrested her.
The petition for the injunction alleges violation of the laws of 1794, and also of April, 1925, when the Legislature appropriated $750,000 for the State's participation in the exposition, with the stipulation that the Sunday closing laws would be observed.

FOREST FIRE DEATHS IN NORTHWEST TOTAL NINE
By the Associated Press. SEATTLE, Wash., July 15.—The Pacific Northwest today entered its second week of the forest fire menace which has taken a toll of nine lives and destroyed thousands of acres of valuable timber with the United States Weather Bureau giving little hope of relief from dry weather. Continued high temperatures, low humidity and winds were predicted.
The latest deaths resulting from the fires were those of Mrs. Leslie Watt and her two children and Mrs. Clifford Nesbitt. They were trapped by a fire while driving in an automobile between Banff, Alberta, and Windermere, B. C., Tuesday.
A fire warden who returned to Edmonton, Alta., from the White Court District on Athabasca River, said flames traveled through tree tops at 8 to 10 miles an hour. The Kamik forest in Montana was covered by 130 fires in dry timber. A fire near Glacier National Park has burned over 5000 acres and was said to be beyond control.

DELANEY 7 TO 5 FAVORITE TO GAIN BERLENBACH'S TITLE, TONIGHT

50,000 TO SEE FIGHT; BOXERS GET $250,000

Rivals Have Met Twice, Each Gaining a Victory; Contest Will Be Battle of Sword and Club.

How Experts View Probable Outcome Of Tonight's Fight

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, July 15.—Who will win the battle between Paul Berlenbach of Astoria, world's light heavyweight champion, and his keenest rival, Jack Delaney, the Bridgeport Adonis?

Opinion among the experts seems to be about evenly divided, many thinking that Delaney will be the new champion in about the sixth round, by the K. O. route.

Some of the opinions that prevail today along Broadway are as follows:

Jack Dempsey—Great fighters, both. Delaney.

Wilbert Robinson—Berlenbach. Jim Jeffries—Delaney, by a K. O.

Jim Corbett—Berlenbach. Tom Sharkey—Delaney.

Paddy Mullins—Delaney. Gene Tunney—Berlenbach by K. O.

Jack Kearns—No difference. Both are high.

Billie Flynn—Delaney; he plays my better.

Jack Curley—Berlenbach. Georges Carpentier—Delaney. Gus Wilson—Berlenbach.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 15.—Only a cloudburst can cause postponement of the 15-round light heavyweight title battle between Paul Berlenbach and Jack Delaney in Brooklyn tonight.

Promoter Fugazy announced after a conference with the State Athletic Commission.

At 3 o'clock the Weather Bureau announcement read: "Cloudy and unsettled tonight, with possibly light showers."

The eastern skies appeared to be brightening.

By Ed Van Every,
Of the New York Evening World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Although the bout tonight for the world's light heavyweight title will be fought with nature's weapons, it will be the pitting of the sword against the club.

Gladiators of the modern prize ring fashioned their methods of assault.

The champion, Paul Berlenbach, wields granite fists with which he clubs his foe into submission.

The challenger, Jack Delaney, piles his glove-encased hands like a crater with which he reaches the vitals of an opponent.

Berlenbach weighed 174½ and Delaney 165½.

So intense is the interest that has been aroused over the 15-round battle to be waged in Ebbets Field it has become the most important boxing match since the heavy-weight title bout between Jack Dempsey and Luis Angel Firpo fought in September, 1923.

It would attract as great a gathering only that the capacity of the Brooklyn National League baseball park, where the battle will be pitched, is limited to about 45,000 for boxing attendance. A potential million-dollar gate under existing conditions, will not exceed $500,000.

Of this amount the champion is to receive $150,000 and the challenger $100,000. It speaks for the vagaries of fortune that the younger man who is to receive the smaller, though considerable amount, and who may emerge as the 175-pound champion of the world, was thought to be close to the pugilistic scrap heap, on account of an injury to his hand, that his present manager was able three years ago to purchase the contract to his services for $900.

He is quoted as being as high as a 7 to 5 betting favorite over the champion.

It also serves to illustrate the vagaries of public favor that this same Delaney was subjugated to derisive caricature about two years ago in the old Garden. Because he failed to knock out Pat Reed the rally gods chanted "Delaney is a bum." And now he is the darling of the followers of boxing and estimates as the finest exponent of the manly art of the present day.

The challenger, despite a long career of misfortune, has fashioned the efforts of his somewhat brutal calling into a thing of beautiful action. If the deities of boxing say there is nothing of beauty in the knocking of an opponent senseless with the human fist, they have never seen Delaney in the act of delivering a knock-out punch. In that finishing blow is somehow combined the grace, rhythm and power.

It is in this line of execution that he has won the admiration of not only the ordinary followers of the sport, but of many persons of high and dignified walks of life. It is this art of Orville Chappelaine's, Delaney's real name, that fits in

Tuberculosis Day Marathon Won By Harold Scheedy

Sherman Park Gymnasts Please Crowd; Maguire Girls Capture Relay Race.

Tuberculosis day, more notable for its frills than for its feature, the Cardinal-Brooklyn game, saw Harold Scheedy, 16-year-old representative of the St. Stephen Evangelical A. C., cross the finish line yesterday the winner of the boys' marathon, 10 seconds ahead of Byrne Dimond of Loew's State. William Hall, Tower Grove A. C., was third. Scheedy was fresh after the long grind while other boys were coming in the side gate at the ball park and sprawling at full length on the grass.

The Maguire sisters from Pacific, Mo., Catherine, Annie and Irene, teamed with Jennie Glaze ran away with the Women's A. A. U. 440-yard relay, after overcoming a nice lead given the Coliseum A. C. team on the first lap by DeLores Boeckmann.

A touch of old world athletics was lent by the splendid performance of 60 youthful gymnasts from Hans Lehmann's Sherman Park class, whose manual drill with steel wands was one of the features of the afternoon. The gymnasts made a striking appearance in their trim black women's costumes and white men's attire and went through their stunts with precision.

Blow Playground took the girls' 330-yard relay and the Concordia won the Turners' 440-yard relay.

Mayor Miller and Archbishop Glennon presented the trophies.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The closing price in the copyrighted financial review today says:

"Speculators for the decline regained control of the stock market in quiet trading today. Prices of most of the recently prominent leaders averaged lower, although selling pressure was not exceptionally heavy in spite of profit-taking. Unsettledness was apparent as well in the principal commodity and foreign exchange markets. Bonds were more freely offered in most instances and showed a tendency to sag. Government issues eased off, while foreign bonds responded to lower exchange rates with moderate reaction. Several industrial and rail issues sagged back in sympathy with the decline in stocks. Easier money rates failed to stimulate buying.

Call at Rate of 4 Per Cent.

"Fears that another advance in the redoubtable rate at the Federal Reserve Bank was under consideration, revived by the continued firmness in the market for time funds, were dispelled soon after mid-session by a decline in the rate for call money on the Stock Exchange to 4 per cent. after renewals had been arranged at 4 1/2 per cent. This development, while it served to rekindle trading activity, was not business was noticeably smaller than yesterday. The earlier tone at the start of the day was attributed to further profit taking and some selling in anticipation of a technical reaction. Stocks were rather readily absorbed on the set-back, however, and developed a firmer tone in the afternoon.

Mixed Trend in Stocks.

"As a result of increased confusion among traders over probable immediate price movements, the market fluctuated erratically. Net changes were comparatively small in the general list, but a definite trend was decidedly lacking. Several specialties and many industrial stocks which had recently been in good demand were offered more freely and recorded lower values. Some of the utilities were included in the group. Rail shares were inclined to sag, also, although Lackawanna and Lehigh Valley were strong. General Motors, Woolworth, General Electric, Montgomery Ward, Kinney, Manhattan Electric Supply and others sold lower, while Webster and Heilbrunn, International Harvester, National Lead, National Clock and Suit and tobacco stocks improved.

French Francs at Record Low.

"Weakness again developed in French and Belgian francs, rates on Paris falling to the lowest record for all time under the 2 1/2 cent bottom reached several days ago. Belgian francs fell to within a short distance of the bottom, while lire ruled easier. Sterling held fairly steady, however, and most of the other European rates moved within narrow limits.

Commodities Irregular.

"In the principal commodity markets an irregular tone prevailed, with prices highly sensitive to crop reports and weather conditions. Wheat sagged in response to lower quotations in Liverpool and unofficial advice from the Census yield greatly in excess of the recent estimate of the dominion authorities. Cotton moved erratically starting lower and recovering losses before the end of the session. Improved support brought a small advance in the afternoon.

The Trend of Mortgage Investments

What the July investor should know about the future of real estate mortgage securities

A Billion a Year

The investing public was quick to realize the advantages of this type of security, and during 1925, in the United States alone, approximately one billion dollars was invested in first mortgage bonds.

Three Essential Safeguards

However, the convenience and simplicity of the modern coupon bond must not be interpreted as a guarantee of safety. To be absolutely safe successful investors in first mortgage bonds have learned to rely on three additional safeguards:

What Leading Financial Authorities Say

It has been said many times that a guarantee is not only appropriate but necessary when applied to real estate mortgage bonds.

Guaranteed Bonds

Guaranteed first mortgage bonds, the Analyst says, are the most popular type of security in the market. They are guaranteed by the issuer, and the guarantor is a leading financial institution.

From World's Work, May, 1926

In an article devoted exclusively to guaranteed real estate bonds, the World's Work says: "We consider the guaranteed real estate mortgage, where there is an ample provision for the payment of principal and interest, as the safest security one can buy."

CAMPAIGN IN OHIO TO ABOLISH PRIMARY

Petitions Circulated for Constitutional Amendment Require 200,000 Signatures.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

AKRON, O., July 15.—Striking while the iron of public indignation is hot, a strong effort is being made in this State to abandon the direct primary system of nominating candidates for public office. It will be necessary to amend the State Constitution before the desired end can be accomplished, but this laborious task has begun and if the enthusiasm of the men directing the campaign counts for anything at all, the primary soon will go by the board in the Buckeye State.

The antiprimary movement in Ohio is unquestionably a forerunner of similar attacks in other sections of the country. Ohio is the largest State in which the problem has been tackled and the result here will have national significance.

It will be necessary to obtain 200,000 signatures to the amendment referendum petitions by Aug. 3 in order that the question may be voted upon at the November elections, but there is every reason to believe they will be obtained. The personnel of the Primary Referendum Committee is in itself an augury of the ultimate success of the movement. The chairman and leader is Charles L. Knight, Akron publisher, and former member of Congress. Other members of the committee are H. H. Timken, manufacturer of roller bearings; Robert A. Taft, Speaker of the Ohio Assembly; Louis H. Brush, owner of several Ohio newspapers, and Harry L. Davis, former Governor. All are Republicans. The Republicans are especially concerned over the situation, for, under the primary system, they have seen their party in the State torn asunder.

Freak Candidacies.

This year there are 12 aspirants in the field for the Republican nomination for Governor. Knight and other prominent men whom the party tried to draft for the governorship have refused to enter the scramble. Some of the aspirants for office have nothing but freak grievances or ideas to back their candidacies. If any of the "freaks" should be nominated, his queer ideas naturally would become the policy of the Republican party.

The genesis of the antiprimary campaign in this State, therefore, is a desire to return to a system of party responsibility.

"Most of us hailed the primary as the end of the political boss," said Knight in an interview. "We saw the people controlling their own elections and selecting high-grade officials. What we did not see is that people in general do not care a hoot in hell about politics, and one kind of official suits them about as well as another."

"The political boss has found the primary much to his liking. When the primary comes around, what happens? The man who has yelled the loudest for reform and for good candidates goes fishing and forgets to vote. The political machine marches its voters to the polls and names the candidates. The primary is a travesty in a State like Ohio, where with 3,000,000 eligible voters a candidate generally is nominated by 140,000 to 150,000 votes."

Favored by Politicians.

"Not one of the illustrious gentlemen now cluttering up the primary ticket would ever survive a second ballot in a state convention, where the party was responsible for the candidate elected. But under the blessed primary a mutt or a moron may be selected and no leadership and no party is responsible for him. The Republican party in Ohio has been completely wrecked by the primary. It has destroyed party leadership without which any political organization becomes just a name and a rabble."

"Every professional politician is for the primary. Every group and bloc is for it, for by it alone their organized votes have a trading value. Every uplifter is for it, for being creatures of theory they will never turn a theory loose, even long after it has proved unworkable. All the political survivors are for it, for it furnishes nice jobs and no balloting woman is averse, it is so much a day and expenses, even though she may know how funny the idea is that she can deliver the votes of her sisters. The farmers are for it, because they believe the cities are against it, and they are not for anything the cities want."

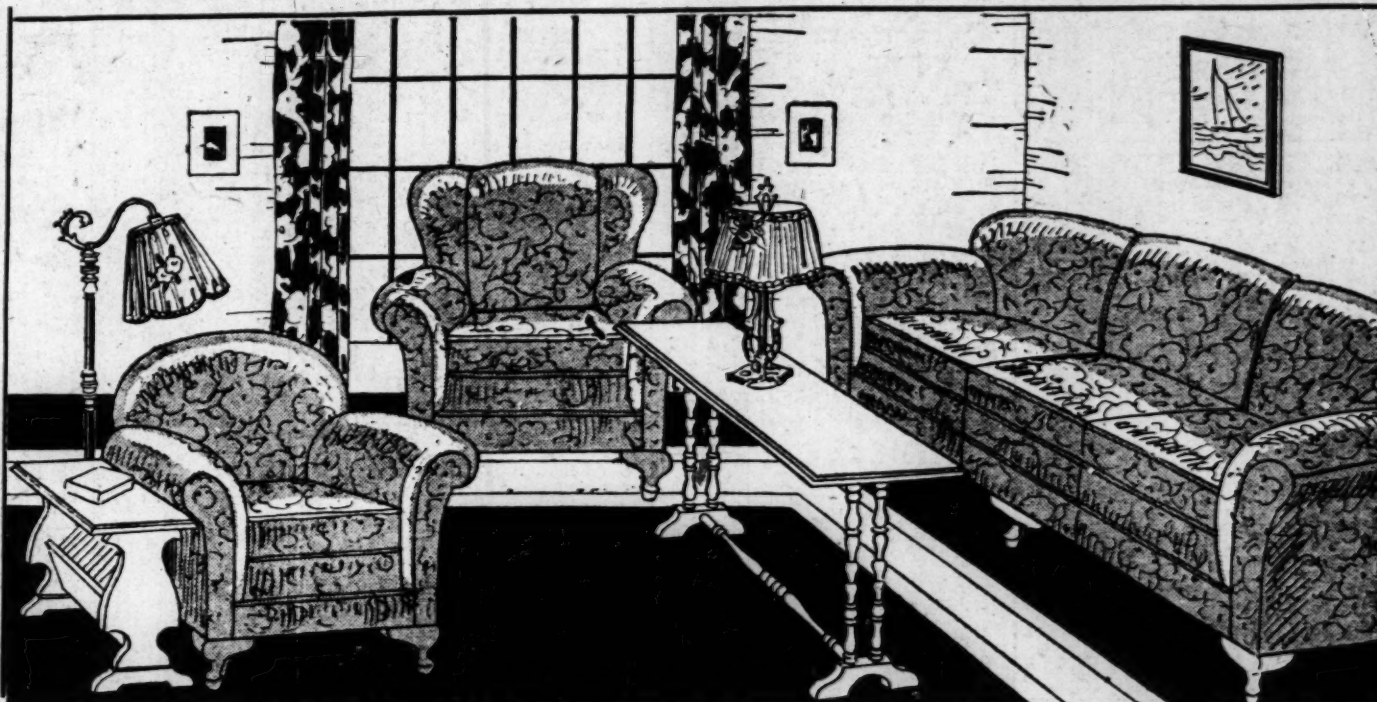

"But, in spite of all these adverse interests, we are going to win. This campaign is being financed by men who are not seeking and never expect to seek any public office, who have no plans or expectations to realize and no ambitions to satisfy, except those that may bring about better government for the State of Ohio."

Policeman Says Driver Hit Him.

When Traffic Policeman Beckman asked Robert Layman, 4624 Delmar boulevard, a service car driver, to get his automobile nearer the curb in parking in front of 614 North Third street yesterday, the officer reports Layman became hostile, refused to give any information about himself and swung on the policeman's jaw and followed with a kick. Beckman took Layman to Carr street station, where he charges Layman again attempted to strike him and had to be subdued. Layman was locked up.

13 MONTHS TO LIVE

The Love Story of a Man Pledged to Commit Suicide After His Honeymoon.

By OCTAVUS ROY COHEN

(Copyright, 1926.)

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.
ALAN BECKWITH, without family or friends, and unable to make a living at 26, determines to commit suicide. In order to repay his landlady, MRS. GARRISON, who had time and again helped him, he offers a grim proposition to ANDREW NORTH, powerful but miserly underworld figure, known as "The Man Who Never Smiles." Beckwith proposes to take out a $500 life insurance policy made payable to North. After the boy's death, which will appear accidental, North can collect the money, keep half and pay Mrs. Garrison the other half.

After some consideration, North rejects the idea, but offers a similar proposition on a larger scale. He proposes to insure Alan's life for $100,000, giving him 13 months to live and $20,000 to spend. At the end of that time Alan will complete his suicide pact and the money will be paid over to his wife.

CHAPTER III.

An Irrevocable Decision.

At first Alan did not understand. A puzzled expression crossed his face and he shook his head slowly.

"I have no wife," he said.

"No. Not now. But you will have."

"Why not? From tonight you are dead. What difference does it make if for thirteen months you—as a dead man—share your roof with a woman?"

"None. Of course, it makes no difference. But the thing rather knocks me off my feet; I don't quite grasp it."

"Get this, then, Beckwith: When you apply for your hundred-thousand-dollar policy you are to state that you are about to get married. The beneficiary is to be named as your wife. Immediately when the policy is issued you will marry. For the remaining thirteen months of your life you are to live with this woman, so far as the public is concerned, as man and wife. That is essential. Then, no matter how you die, there can be no question of the beneficiary's insurable interest. Is that clear?"

"Yes—whatever you say is all right. But I'm wondering, Mr. North, how you can be sure of getting the money yourself if a third person is made beneficiary?"

"The corners of Andrew North's mouth seemed to tighten; his answer was made matter-of-factly.

"I control this woman."

"Oh!" Then, as though fearing he had been impolite, Alan hastened to add—"I see."

"Be sure that I would take no chances, Beckwith. When I control a person—I control him. Of course, you are thinking that when you kill yourself your wife might take the money from the insurance company and refuse to turn it over to me. Well—she won't."

"Yes, sir."

"She will do exactly as I say; absolutely. There is no question of that."

"If you are satisfied—" Alan was distinctly embarrassed. In a second it seemed that North had lost some of his human quality—he was more the man of his reputation; cold-blooded, ruthless, this amazing interview Alan had seen no hint of any sort of emotion reflected in the putty face. Then came North's voice—monotonous, calm—as though discussing the day's market report.

"I make a great deal of money from market operations. I have perhaps profited from the operations of clever yeggmen. Men have opposed me—have double-crossed me—and they have abruptly ceased to exist. I wish you to understand clearly what manner of man you are dealing with."

Alan merely nodded.

"I know just what will happen with you, Beckwith. You are more human, and I know human beings. Tonight you are willing to kill yourself; that is because you are without money, clothes, friends or food. If you enter into this contract you will assume a position—however modest—in the community. No matter what manner of woman your wife may be, no matter how severely you may let her alone, you will yet come to regard yourself as a married man. You will have more money than you ever dreamed of; good food, excellent clothes and leisure. It is inevitable that you will desire to live. I am merely warning you, however, that when you accept from me that $20,000 you have signed your death warrant."

"Yes—I understand."

"I wonder if you do? To make it quite clear: There will be no moment of your 13 months of life during which you will not be under surveillance. Should your nerve wilt—should you try to escape—you will be killed. When the end of the thirteenth month shall arrive, it will not become more gentle and not you will kill yourself. Failing to do so, a very efficient gentleman will relieve you of the trouble. I do not wish to appear boastful, but I believe that you will find if you inquire at the proper places, that no one has ever yet double-crossed Andrew North. And now—his tone became more gentle and once again the steely expression fled his face—"pardon me if I have been brutal. I don't usually talk this way; I merely wanted to make it clear to you what you were going into. That is my policy in a deal of this sort. I am rather proud of my reputation as a square-shooter. I'm coming clean with you. That is so you can't whine your way to me later and say that you didn't understand or that you have changed your mind. It will be too late then to change."

"I understand fully. And if I decide to go ahead?"

"I will stake you temporarily. Tomorrow you file your application with a standard old-line company for $100,000 worth of life insurance. As soon as the policy is issued you will be married—I will have attended to the renting of an apartment."

"May I ask the name of the woman—who is to become my wife?"

"Beverly Ames."

The name struck on Alan's ears with a shock; it had a poetic resonance; a softness, a gentleness which was not at all in keeping with the picture he had drawn. He had expected a name as harsh as he knew the woman would be—as blatant and common as this creature who was controlled by the czar of the city's underworld; this director of burglars and murderers; this blond, inhuman, bloodless Andrew North who never smiled and never frowned.

"Beverly Ames." Then he added in a low, "A pretty name."

North shrugged. "What matter?"

"None—of course."

"To continue: I will give you the money to pay the first year's premium. Immediately when the policy is issued you will marry and go to your apartment. For 13 months you may do exactly as you wish. You will be constantly under observation, but I explained, escape will be impossible. If for any particular reason you wish to go somewhere, you can apply to me for permission. Some one will go with you—some one competent to see that you do not violate your agreement."

"Pardon me, Mr. North," and there was a quiet, steady look in his manner. "I am a gentleman."

"Rot! No man remains a gentleman when his life is at stake."

"You're wrong, sir. Perhaps you do not know gentlemen very well."

"I know human nature: that's enough. At any rate, I'll take no chances. And now—have I made quite clear to you what you are facing; that the minute you accept this proposition you have a maximum lifetime of 13 months?"

"Yes, sir."

"And your decision?"

Alan hesitated. His heart was pounding; ahead of him, too—where he had expected to have been dead by this time—dead by his own hand. Yet there was something uncanny about the whole thing; he was being asked to sentence himself to death. Then his head went back and his eyes met those of Andrew North squarely.

"I accept," he said simply.

will have an apartment in the city here—I will rent one for you. You will meet some people—no matter how casually. It is essential that those who know you be able to testify—after your death—that you were actually man and wife. As to your domestic relations, that is a matter for you and your wife to decide. Outwardly, however, you are to be a happy, newly married couple."

"I understand. It's rather odd: married this way and living with a woman I don't know."

"Stop that right now!" North's voice rasped harshly across the table. "I'm not asking you to do this; get that clearly fixed in your mind. For all I care you can walk out of here tonight and throw yourself in the river. You can decide to try again and call off this idiotic suicide idea of yours."

"Remember, I'm not suggesting that you kill yourself. I am, in fact, telling you that this is a silly, childish, unmanly thing. But once you decide to accept my proposition, you are committed to it unalterably. There can be no turning back."

"Yes?" Alan focused his eyes on the table. He waited for North to continue.

"I wonder," said the other at length, "just what you know of me?"

"Not much, sir. Only what I have heard."

"And that is?"

The boy raised his eyes fearfully. "It is not very complimentary, Mr. North."

"Good. Explain."

"Do as I say."

His manner was brusque. Alan's teeth clicked together. "Very well, sir; if you insist. I have no desire to put insulting rumor into words. But I have heard that you control the underworld of this city. I have heard that you head the biggest liquor ring in the State. I have heard that there is no form of iniquity which is beneath you and that you make your living from the operations of a band of liquor runners, yeggmen, pickpockets and—"

"Go on!" commanded North grimly. "And even that murder might be traced to your door if the investigation could be carried far enough. I am sorry, sir, that you forced me to be so honest."

"Good. I appreciate frankness. Of course, you expect me to be angry—and to deny a good part of that. But I am not angry and I do not deny it. Your details are slightly at fault, but essentially all that you have said is true."

They stared wordlessly at one another. Alan experienced a queer tremor of horror. He looked into the colorless orbs of Andrew North and saw no light of humanness reflected therein; the man was cool, impassive—insolent even. His face was a blank mask—it was easy enough to believe that he never smiled; through all this amazing interview Alan had seen no hint of any sort of emotion reflected in the putty face. Then came North's voice—monotonous, calm—as though discussing the day's market report.

"I make a great deal of money from market operations. I have perhaps profited from the operations of clever yeggmen. Men have opposed me—have double-crossed me—and they have abruptly ceased to exist. I wish you to understand clearly what manner of man you are dealing with."

THE WOMAN DOES PAY...When It Comes to...FUR COATS

By ALAN MACDONALD.

WHERE do all the girls get their fur coats? How do the young women flocking the streets, cars and subways of every large city come by the stylish cloaks and wraps that, among other things, prompt visiting foreigners—Princes, Dukes and artists—to hail the American girl as the best dressed and smartest in the world?

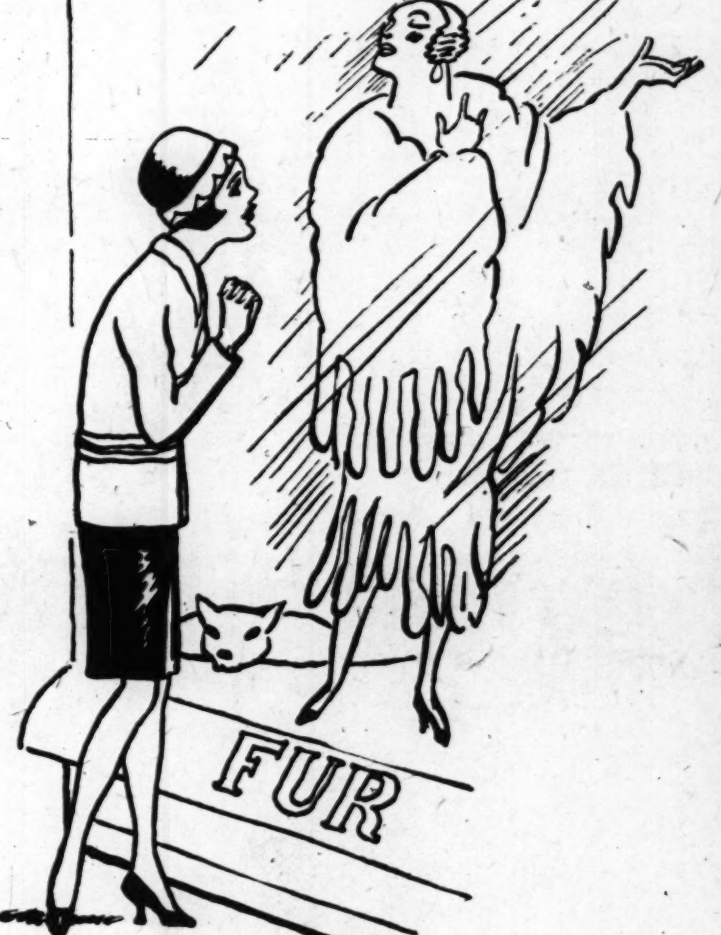

Certainly, those supposedly gay, susceptible males of means addicted to playing Santa Claus to pretty young things the whole year round can be credited with only a small percentage of the daily payment of pelts. Father, mother and humble husband are probably much better represented. And high-salaried movie actresses as well as models and others who have friends somehow on the inside of the trade must also be counted. But what about the rest—the great army of fur-bearing humans—the young women who, according to credit records, earn anywhere between $12 and $50 a week—the average being about $22.

No so long ago I sat opposite a miss I took to be about 17 on a garulous; the prices of furs were three times as high as during the war, and still sales were increasing every year—had increased this year.

Sure, working girls—all kinds of girls—got their furs in his shop. Times had changed. A few years back only the rich could get 'em. But now any girl that had a job could have a fur coat—that is, any one who hadn't been in jail, escaped from a reformatory, or robbed her employer, and who, of course, was willing to pay the price.

The price was anywhere from $5 down and from $2 to $5 for perhaps 40 weeks or more thereafter. The place where it might be paid was almost any fur store in town. In down town subway train in New York. I observed that although her fur coat appeared new and rather valuable, it was quite out of keeping with her obvious inexpensive dress and down-at-the-heel "paper" sandals. She caught my presumably too inquiring glance and blushing drew the coat more closely about her—as if to hide her dusty serge.

Now, how could she come by such a coat? Up on the street again, I looked casually into the window of a fur shop on the corner. Big tags with fancy names and prices—$175, $150 and "only $195" hung on the exhibited skins. And way back in the window was a garment as like that of the girl in the subway as one penny is like another! Could that girl have gotten her coat in such a shop—or even in this very one? There must be thousands like her—where did they get theirs? I went into the shop and casually inquired about where girls get fur coats. The dealer was fat, amiable, almost one of the big department stores, of course, furs, like everything else, could be gotten on credit only through charge accounts. But in one or two there were installment fur departments. There were several out-and-out installment houses that sold furs. And practically every "regular" fur shop had its "deferred payment plan." Credit selling of furs had become virtually universal—like credit selling of automobiles and ice boxes. It had proved the furrier's best method of keeping winter goods moving in summer. Certainly, I learned about furs from him.

Yet how could a girl earning $22 a week, or even more, buy clothing, rouge, powder and everything and still pay for a muskrat cloak trimmed with fox, at, say, $200?

FINALLY I went to see Miss Dorothy Davis, the comely brown-eyed head of one of the biggest credit fur departments in Manhattan. Miss Davis smiled.

"You'd scarcely believe—being a man—what they give up for a fur coat," she said. "Talk about the Spartans—why, those old Greeks never even thought of such a sacrifice. And, besides, the Spartans looked so serious about it; but the modern girl smiles through lunchless days and moveless nights. Oh, sometimes sweetie-rits help. I know, but they can't be relied upon—at least, so I'm told."

She went on to say that she passed personally on all who applied for credit in the department, and that she had, of course, to go pretty deeply into personal things like wages and expenses. Some girls even wear cotton stockings all summer to have a fur coat in winter, so Miss Davis said. And she told me this little true story:

"You know, we make particular appeal to the daughters of old customers. One day last summer a girl came to me seeking credit for a coat. She was, I learned later, the daughter of parents who had bought her baby clothing on credit from persons now in the 'firm. But neither she nor they had dealt with us in many years."

"Her mother and father had died, and she was living with a widowed aunt who worked. She was a cash girl in furs in a big uptown department store, she told me, and her wages were $19.50 a week. Every day she handled beautiful furs—minkables worth thousands. And she wanted a coat so badly that tears trickled from her eyes as she explained."

"I went over her life and I couldn't really see where she could pay for a coat and have enough to live on. I wanted her to have the coat, too, because I believe girls should have pretty things, especially girls who work. Still, I had to refuse, and she went away."

"Perhaps two months passed before she came in again. She had $35 for a down payment on a coat. It seemed she had taken her two weeks vacation—and had gone to work in a restaurant. Then, too, when she came back, she had raised her pay to a sales girl's pay and bettered her pay. I gave her a Marmot coat—the nearest thing to mink—for $150. She went out with her head high—happy as could be. At the door she met a girl she knew and I heard this girl ask about her vacation, her eyes enviously taking in the new cloak. This is what the new salesgirl said, with a touch of defiance: "Oh, yes, I went down to Atlantic City with a friend. Had a wonderful time. It was just glorious."

But for one such incident wherein all ends well, there is, at least, skirts tragedy. There was, for instance, this story of a nurse employed some time ago in a Brooklyn hospital. She had been a nurse there for years. One day a friend of hers gave a party and she felt that she had to have a fur coat.

She apparently totaled up her cash and found she could get together only a very little. One can fancy how she cudgled her brain until at length she went to a certain credit house and selected a coat. When the minute came to pay, she exclaimed that she had left her money home. She offered her diamond ring for security, and, although it was against the custom of the house to do business in that way, the ring was finally accepted. She took the coat, wore it to the party—and there, it was, as she afterward claimed, stolen.

However, she agreed to keep up the payments, and for a time she did. But the fact that she had no coat nor ring and was still forced to pay $5 a week must have galled her like a harness, and at last she disappeared. Search for her began and finally she was found working in another hospital. She was contrite, and promised faithfully to fulfill her obligation. Again for a time she made the payments; then again disappeared. And the credit house is still searching for her.

But the credit houses are not always odorous, at least some of them. A short time ago a young man of small salary and no established credit married. His wife became ill shortly after marriage, and he did everything he could to restore her health. One day he went to the Miss Davis mentioned above and explained that his young wife longed for a fur coat.

He really thought, he said, that it would aid in getting her back upon her feet. The store owner, to whom Miss Davis took the plea, was touched by it. The husband walked out of the shop with a bay seal coat with squirrel collar. Two weeks later his wife died. The store took the coat back—and by one of those deft touches that fate sometimes gives to life, it was put in the workroom and cut up for use in repairs.

Fur coats are like drugs, in the opinion of one dealer; a woman who has once had one almost never can be happy without one. In the pleas they make for credit, many

THE HOME KITCHEN

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON

Home-Cooked Cold Meats

COLD meats, with potato or other vegetable salads, make easy and delightful home dinners. The most healthful cold meats include boiled chicken, roast lamb, roast beef. Next to these may be put boiled tongue and ham.

Perhaps the chicken yields the most for the money. Singe, clean and put on, covered with cold water. Add a sliced onion, carrot, chopped parsley, celery leaves and stalks, a quarter cupful of vinegar, a sliced leek and a tiny bit of garlic. Keep covered and cook evenly and gently until done. When slightly cool lift the chicken, slice the meat for the cold plate, cut up the dark meat for creaming on toast and throw skin and bones into the soup and cook gently until the bones are clean, the strain. When cold, remove the grease and the broth is ready to use in any way desired.

In buying a whole ham, have the shank end cut off to boil with cabbage in the old-fashioned way. Take two slices for frying, then boil the round end for slicing.

A good-sized leg of lamb will yield quite a lot of meat. See that it is well skinned, the bone cut back to the first joint and the meat folded over and skewered in place. The small pieces and left-overs can be made into excellent croquettes.

The usual rolled roast of beef cuts the best way for this service. Insist on all the bones being removed from the meat for rolling, which can be used for soup or broth. The left-overs can also be used for hash or croquettes.

The boiled tongue is perhaps the richest meat. A large tongue is cheapest, for it has the most slicing on it.

Meats should be sliced at the last moment so that the edges do not dry. Serve potato, egg, macedon vegetable, fresh tomato and cucumber, orange and onion or fruit salad or hot slaw with the meats.

It is the duty of all persons, when affairs are the most prosperous, then in especial to reflect within themselves in what way they are to endure adversity.—Terence.

Danny Goes Visiting

One should always be his best
When he finds himself a guest.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

WHAT Danny means by that saying is that when one is a guest one is in the position of receiving favors and therefore should be polite and considerate of the feelings of others. This, of course, is very true, but it isn't always easy. There is such a thing as being a willing guest, and again there is such a thing as being an unwilling guest. But in either case it is wise to appear at one's best.

"I shall be looking for you," said Jimmy.

Jimmy Skunk had asked Danny why he hadn't been over to visit him under the bathhouse over near the beach. Danny had politely explained that he had been so very busy and there had been so much to see that he had kept putting that visit off.

"Pooh!" exclaimed Jimmy Skunk, "you don't mean to say there is much to be seen over here on this marsh, do you? If you want to see things, come over to the beach. Come over where the tide washes up things every day. That is the place to see things. I tell you what, come over to visit me tonight. It is going to be a moonlight night and we'll take a walk down the beach. As long as you are with me there'll be nothing for you to be afraid of."

Danny would have liked to refuse the invitation, but he didn't see how he could. So at last he agreed to go to visit Jimmy Skunk. "I shall be looking for you," said Jimmy, and ambled away in the direction of the bathhouse under which he made his home.

After Jimmy had departed Danny wished that he hadn't given his word that he would go over there that night. Then he remembered what Jimmy had said about seeing things on the beach, and finally he actually got impatient for the coming of the Black Shadows, that he might safely start for Jimmy Skunk's home.

When Danny finally reached the bathhouse he was tired. He tried to be polite, but he couldn't help showing that he was tired. Jimmy Skunk saw this. "You'd better rest a while," said he. "The moon doesn't rise until late tonight and what is more, the tide is not out yet. I am tired myself, so we will rest a while before we start out. When the tide goes out then we'll go down on the beach and I'll show you things."

Meanwhile Danny had been poking around and he had discovered a dry, brittle, queer-looking thing. It was shaped like a star. Yes, sir, it was shaped exactly like one of the stars which Danny had often seen twinkling high overhead. "If you please," said he, "what is this thing?"

Jimmy Skunk came over to it.

"Oh, that?" said he. "Oh, that's a dead starfish. I'll show you some live ones by and by."

"A fish!" exclaimed Danny. "What are you trying to tell me? Do you think I'm so innocent that I do not know a fish when I see one? The idea of trying to tell me that this is a fish! I guess you must be joking, Jimmy Skunk. I guess you are just trying to have fun with me."

"Nothing of the kind," replied Jimmy. "I said what I meant and I meant what I said. I don't suppose it really is a fish, but it swims in the water when it is alive and it is called the Starfish. So there you are!"

Danny looked very hard at Jimmy Skunk. "I suppose if you say so, it must be so," said he, trying to be polite. "But how a thing like that can swim I don't understand at all."

"Pooh!" said Jimmy. "That's nothing. The Starfish can turn itself inside out."

This was a little too much for Danny. He did his best to be polite, but he just didn't believe a word of that.

The Beauty of Make-Up

By LUCREZIA BORI

THE rouge pot can turn one into a ravishingly beautiful woman or make of her a caricature. I

LUCREZIA BORI

A friend of mine always appeared lovely with the exception of her rouge which never blended. Now she has mastered the art of make-up and in such a clever way that I know you will be interested in knowing about it.

Recently she started doing a series of setting-up exercises each morning and noticed, even the first morning, that a faint pink flush covered her face when the exercises were finished. A week later she noticed that the flush deepened.

This brought about some serious thinking on the subject of rouge, the natural coloring of the skin and the various tones of color and where they appeared on the face. She found three definite tones of color on her face: first, the faint flush that covered all the skin; second, the slightly deeper tone on the chin, forehead and the lobes of the ears; third, the much deeper tone of the cheeks. Realizing how lovely the general effect was and how carefully blended the tones were, she decided that she must learn how to achieve artificially the same results as the color which came to the face after exercising a short time.

First, she wanted a pale pink base cream to be massaged into the skin, but careful search revealed no such cream on the market. So she did a little experimenting of her own and found that by adding a few drops of liquid rouge to her usual vanishing cream she could get the desired shade of pink. This she now uses as a base for her makeup, using just enough to cover the skin and massaging it in carefully. Next she applies a little vanishing cream that has a bit more of the liquid rouge in it, so that it is just a shade brighter, to the forehead, chin and the lobes of the ears. This, too, is carefully blended into the skin. A regular face rouge is used on the cheeks and is applied so that it follows the lines where the natural color would be.

She has also discovered the right shade of powder for her particular complexion and now, instead of being obviously and poorly made up, she is considered naturally beautiful.

New Inventions.

Strong cloth is being made by a Scotch inventor's process for grinding old leather, a binding material and coloring matter into a dough and forming it into sheets.

With a process invented by a South African chemist, photographs are made directly on sensitized paper without the use of films or plates and developed in a few seconds.

Metal corners that can be attached by nails or screws have been invented to be used in the construction of frames for window and door screens without gluing or mortising.

The blade of a new ratchet screw-driver that works at right angles to its handle is removed and placed in the opposite side of the head when its action is to be reversed.

An acetylene metal-cutting outfit, designed by a San Francisco man for the use of firemen, is carried by two men like a stretcher, one end being raised on a tripod when it is used.

New nightgowns are trimmed with cream-colored Irish lace. This and the square necklines are two prominent items in the incoming models.

"THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER"

Whose sacrifice symbolizes the suffering and sorrow borne by thousands of Gold Star Mothers and the anguish and worries of the million mothers whose sons served the cause of Democracy!

His story, told as nearly as man may ever tell, and the story of his mother is narrated in a mighty and beautiful screen elegy at the Grand Central, Lyric Skydome and Capitol Theaters starting Saturday. There can be no finer ode to American manhood and their mothers than "The Unknown Soldier." All the love—all the tenderness—all the mightiness of soul that bore American mothers through the war is woven into this splendid masterpiece.

"The Unknown Soldier" is the Screen's Tribute to the Soldiers' Mothers!

I'd know that flavor in a jiffy!

What Enthusiastic Yale Av. Woman Says:

"Today was wash day. I am so happy to say I am through. It is just eleven o'clock and I am all ready to go down town. Isn't that great to do a family wash, and on your way downtown by eleven o'clock? Of course you wonder how I can do this. Well, since I use Rinso I soak the clothes over night, wash them in the washing machine about fifteen minutes, then rinse and hang them up. The clothes are much whiter and sweeter, it surely takes less time than the old way of washing with soap."

Grow Thin
In the easy way
Used by millions
Proved for 19 years

There is only one effective way to get thin without abnormal exercise or diet. That way was perfected in 1907. It has been used for 19 years. And the use has grown by users telling others until people now are using a million boxes yearly.

Wherever you look you can see the results. Boyish figures are the vogue, fat is the exception. No doubt some of your friends owe the slimmest you envy to Marmola Prescription Tablets. Ask them what this method means. For 19 years Marmola has held the top place in this field. Nothing else has been found to compare with it. That is why so many helps have failed and disappeared. If you suffer excess fat—a blight to beauty, health and finances—you should learn what Marmola does. Go get a box today. Note how much better you feel at once. Then watch the pounds go, one by one, until you reach the weight desired. You will always be glad that you found it.

All druggists sell Marmola at $1 a box. Or it is mailed direct in plain wrapper by Marmola Co., 1703 General Motors Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

THE PASSING SHOW.

SEE our old friend Deacon Scott, With Cincinnati cast his lot, Instead of stickward straying. Here's hoping that the famous "Deac" Starts in upon another streak Of long continued playing.

If Hendricks wins the champion-ship With Mays and Scott, and Wally Pipp, To Huggins he'll say "thank ee."

For Hendricks doesn't care a hoot For any unbaked young recruit But any kind of vet will suit, If he's a former Yankee.

And speaking of the Reds it seems That there are several other teams Who, for their scalps are gunning. The Pirates, Cards and Brooklyn clubs, The New York Giants and the Cubs Are also in the running.

Yea, bo, it is a race, indeed, And while the Reds are in the lead, The margin is so narrow, That every time they fall to win The gooseflesh rises on their skin And chills them to the marrow.

GOOD WORK. Deacon Scott signalized his debut as a Red by making three hits. Indicating that if the Deacon isn't a flash in the pan he'll make the big league yet.

Paul Berlenbach and Jack Delaney are expected to draw a half-million-dollar gate at Ebbets Field this evening. Pretty fair for light heavies.

QUITE SO. THE voice of spellbinder's heard in the land; From rostrum and stump is the enemy panned. Through woodland dale doth his eloquence ring With feverish phrases that don't mean a thing.

BRING APT THE HOCUM. "Here's to the Constitution. May it always be wet (or dry, as the case may be), but, wet or dry, the Constitution." Yo, ho, ho, and a beaker of hooley!

See where an actress in Paris installed an artificial river in her house for a party. The river, we take it, was full of electric currents.
